Inflation Worst In 20 Years

McGovern Unveils Own Welfare Plan

Would Guarantee $50 Per Month For Each Child

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. George S. McGovern today proposed a "human security plan" for fighting poverty, including a guaranteed monthly payment of at least $50 for every child in the nation.

In a speech prepared for a meeting of the Citizen's Committee for Children, the South Dakota Democrat said the plan is a better answer to caring for the nation's poor than President Nixon's family assistance proposal.

McGovern, often mentioned as a possible 1972 Democratic presidential contender, added he was responding to administration contentions that critics of its welfare proposals never offered alternatives of their own.

Welfare Secretary Robert H. Finch said last week administration opponents in Congress had stalled Nixon's family assistance program, which among other things calls for a guaranteed family income of at least $1,600 a year.

The Nixon proposal was sent to the Capitol last August, where it has languished in committee.

Nixon Notes First Year As President

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's schedule today called for a quiet, routine round of activities, a dramatic contrast to this day a year ago when he stood before the Capitol and took the oath of office as the nation's 37th president.

Instead of public appearances and statements on how he feels after 12 months in the White House, Nixon addressed himself to the problems of relief to Nigeria and a report from Vice President Spiro T. Agnew on his just concluded three-week trip to Asia.

The President is saving his public assessment of his first year in office for Thursday, when he makes his State of the Union address to Congress.

He will celebrate privately tonight when members of his Cabinet and their wives give him and Mrs. Nixon a black-tie dinner at Blair House.

Republicans are staging a big first anniversary inaugural ball Wednesday night, but Nixon will pass up the event because it is on the eve of his State of the Union address.

However, Nixon will join some 200 close friends, campaign workers, and Cabinet members at another private ball Sunday.

Nixon, just turned 57, starts his second year in office buoyed by polls which report his popularity rating in excess of 60 per cent, and while he has not assessed his year's work, his aides have issued optimistic year-end appraisals of the administration.

Some slight warming was indicated in the forecasts for Thursday.

Judge Postpones Ohioan's Trial

NHA TRANG (AP) — An Army judge today postponed the murder trial of Sgt. Bruce A. Knerr, 20, Toledo, Ohio, until the first week of March because of confusion over the charge against him.

Knerr is the third U.S. serviceman to go before a court-martial this week on charges of killing a Vietnamese. The 173rd Airborne Brigade soldier is accused of fatally shooting a civilian last Sept. 12 in Binh Dinh Province.

"I can't ask for a plea," said the military judge, Lt. Col. Kenneth A. Howard of Atlanta, Ga. "Like the accused, I'm not sure of what the accused is accused of."

U.S. Units Catch, Slay 234 Reds

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. forces caught a large number of North Vietnamese in a clearing about three miles from the Cambodian border today and killed 234 of them, military spokesmen said. They reported that the size of the enemy force was estimated at two battalions. The actual number was not given. A North Vietnamese battalion generally numbers around 500 men, but at times varies between 300 and 600 men.

It was the biggest strike of its kind against the enemy since June, according to U.S. headquarters.

The battle occurred near the Bu Dop Special Forces camp, 88 miles north of Saigon, scene of heavy fighting early last month.

Most of the enemy were killed under a furious pounding by U.S. artillery and aircraft, field reports said.

American casualties were described as negligible.

"We want to keep them off guard," said one officer. "It's getting within two weeks of Tet. We want to prevent a concentration of troops and smash their supply areas, keep them from moving too much stuff over into South Vietnam."

Tet, the lunar new year, falls on Feb. 6 this year.

The Seven Mountains, located a few miles from the lower Cambodian border, are a major way station for North Vietnamese troops moving from Cambodia into the lower delta.

Sources said earlier that

North Vietnam had stepped up its infiltration into the delta six-fold since last June, using the Seven Mountains region as one of the key routes. But earlier B52 attacks on the enemy's rocky caves in the area proved ineffective.

Other waves of B52 bombers struck in the central highlands near the Laotian border. They pounded North Vietnamese base camps 10 miles northwest of Dak To.

Price Boosts Erase Hikes In Paychecks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans in 1969 paid more for everything from houses to hamburger in the worst inflation in 20 years, the government said in reporting a 6.1 per cent rise in living costs for last year.

And some 45 million rank-and-file workers were caught in the squeeze of rising prices and a slowing economy under President Nixon's efforts to combat inflation, losing more purchasing power than they gained in pay, Monday's report said.

"For 1969 as a whole, increases in consumer prices eroded all of the gain in earnings," the Labor Department said in reporting that average pay of $17.25 a week last month was up $6.87 over the year but worth $7.15 less in the market place.

A big December grocery price rise of 1.6 per cent, accounting for half the month's rise in living costs, wound up 1969 food price hikes at a total of 7.2 per cent.

Hamburger at 64.2 cents a pound was up 12.3 cents or 24 per cent over the year, eggs at 77.9 cents a dozen were up 11.5 cents or 17 per cent, lettuce was 9.8 cents or 31 per cent a head higher at 40.8 cents and milk was 2 cents or 3.6 per cent higher per half-gallon over the year, said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Meat and bread also were higher, said the bureau.

"The costs of services associated with home ownership continued their upward trend," rising five-tenths of one per cent in December for a 6.7 per cent hike in housing costs for the year, it said.

Clothing and transportation were up 5.2 per cent each in 1969, medical care rose 6 per cent and recreation 3.8 per cent. The December hike in overall living costs pushed the Consumer Price Index up six-tenths of one per cent to 131.3 per cent of its 1957-59 base.

The index figure means every $10 worth of typical family living costs 10 years ago cost $13.13 last month, 76 cents more than in 1968.

The 6.1 per cent rise in living costs for the year, highest for any 12-month period since November 1950, to November 1951 when Korean War wage-price controls were imposed, clipped more than 6 cents off the value of the 1968 dollar, and reduced the value of the 1957-59 dollar to 76.2 cents.

"The weekly take-home pay for workers with three dependents averaged $99.99 in 1969, 4.9 per cent higher than in 1968. After adjustment for price increases, however, real net spendable earnings—purchasing power in 1957-59 terms—averaged $78.30, four-tenths of one per cent lower than 1968's record and also below the 1965 and 1966 levels," the bureau said.

Construction workers gained $6.16 a week in purchasing power in 1969 and miners $3.14 because of higher wage increases in those industries, but workers in manufacturing averaged 34 cents less a week in purchasing power and workers in retail and wholesale trade lost 18 cents a week.

Talk Session Set In Cincy

CINCINNATI (AP) — A joint negotiating session was scheduled today in Cincinnati's nonuniformed employees strike after representatives of opposing sides made slight concessions Monday night.

In Middletown, 66 striking city workers agreed to return to work today while their wage dispute is being mediated.

Cincinnati's wage negotiating committee made a new proposal Monday night that called for an immediate 18-cent-an-hour or a 5 per cent hike, whichever is greater.

The union, representing nearly 1,500 striking sanitation, street and water maintenance workers, countered by reducing its demands for longevity pay and increased vacation time.

In the Middletown walkout, Judge George Cramer of Butler County Common Pleas Court, federal mediator Ed Windes and representatives of the union and city were to meet tonight at Dayton.

ECENTRIC "MILLIONAIRE" — Michael James Brody, 21, and his bride, Renee, talk to newsmen in New York following an appearance on a TV program. He said he had inherited $25 million and "I might be worth a trillion" today. GOP Defectors Assure Passage Of Health Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican defections appeared today to guarantee passage of the budget-boosting health and education appropriations bill as the Senate prepared to vote on the measure President Nixon has vowed to veto.

The pressures of an election year and the popularity of an education aid feature the White House opposes combined to split the GOP vote as this afternoon's spending showdown approached.

Majority Democrats were aligned in general support of the compromise $19.7 billion appropriation, already cleared by the House.

It includes $1.26 billion for fiscal 1970 education and health appropriations which were not part of the Nixon budget. The White House has declared this inflationary.

"The bill is overloaded, beyond what the President thinks the budget can bear," said Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, the Republican leader.

Not so, said Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic leader. "It amounts to a reasonable reordering of our priorities, which is long overdue," Mansfield said, contending the extra money was more than balanced by cuts in defense and foreign aid spending.

Republicans spent most of a two-hour caucus discussing the vote and the veto Monday.

The item that divided Republicans was a $398 million increase in federal aid for schools in areas affected by federal installations. The administration

Sky's Limit For February Draft Call By Numbers

WASHINGTON (AP) — In January the draft tried to call only lottery numbers under 30; but for February, the sky—or No. 366—is the limit.

A spokesman said the Selective Service System has decided not to impose, or even suggest, any upper limit to the draft lottery numbers which may be called to meet the February draft quota.

Asked whether a pace-setting ceiling might be reinstated in the future, he said it appeared doubtful.

But Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, who has headed the draft system since 1941, will be replaced Feb. 16, and his still-unnamed successor could alter the plans.

Last Dec. 1, a lottery drawing was held matching the birthdays of the nation's draft-age men with a chart of numbers from one to 366—one for each day of the year including Leap Year's Feb. 29.

Draft boards were to meet their calls by summoning men with the lowest numbers first—within each board's individual pool of men.

But this raised the possibility that local conditions might force some boards to call relatively high numbers up the list while others were still calling low ones.

Such a result would have been consistent with President Nixon's order of a draft-by-lottery, but White House, Draft, and Pentagon officials concluded the public expected the numbers to rise at a more uniform pace within each board's jurisdiction, a draft official recently explained.

Besides, an unrestrained race through the list each month threatened to have a local board calling lower numbers in one month than it had called earlier, as deferred men re-entered the 1-A eligible pool.

As a result, Selective Service manpower officials suggested to the White House last month state directors should try to keep the numbers level as they distribute the monthly draft quotas among local boards.

In a round of telephone calls, state directors were further told that No. 30 would be a good limit for the January call—if the call could still be met within that ceiling.

Spokesmen said then the intervention was to see whether such a smoothing-out would work. Results of the attempt are not yet available and probably won't be, until at least the end of the month, a spokesman said.

Without any guideline, state directors and local boards are free in February to call up the men they need without regard to how high they must go up the lottery list, or whether local boards must call widely varying lottery numbers.

On the whole, either method should arrive at about the same result over the entire year, since the law requires draft quotas be distributed to states and to local boards in proportion to the size of their respective draft pools.

Nominate Farrell As Draft Chief

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Col. Thomas A. Farrell, chief of staff for the Ohio National Guard Emergency Operations Headquarters, was nominated today to be the state's new Selective Service Director.

The 40-year-old Farrell, a native of Cleveland, would succeed the late Col. Heber Minton, providing the appointment by Gov. James A. Rhodes is approved by national Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey.

Mitchell Paves Way For Carswell Court Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration, working hard to smooth the way for Supreme Court nominee George Harold Carswell, sent Atty-

Gen. John N. Mitchell to Capitol Hill as an advance man to forestall ethics questions.

Hours before Judge Carswell himself was told by the President he was his choice and hours before Monday's public announcement, Mitchell was closeted with top Republicans, displaying financial statements to show there would be no Haynsworth-like problems.

The information in hand, GOP leaders were able to rally quickly behind the Floridian when White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler made the selection public in mid-afternoon.

Sen. Roman L. Hruska of Nebraska, senior Republican on the Judiciary Committee, which begins hearings on the nomination next Tuesday, was able to tell reporters approvingly that Carswell has had "a minimum of business dealings" since he entered public life as a U.S. attorney in 1953.

And GOP Senate Whip Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, a Republican who fought Nixon's nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. to the same seat, said: "The reports thus far have been very favorable and I hope the Senate will be able to confirm the nomination without delay."

The Haynsworth nomination failed partly because of a series of ethics allegations leveled at the South Carolina Judge. Many of the charges appeared to take the administration and GOP Senate leaders by surprise.

Carswell, 50, in a news conference at his home north of Tallahassee, said: "I have my home and a few parcels of real property I inherited from my father and my grandfather."

Hruska said the judge and his wife have a net worth of about $200,000. Hruska said their assets include some Georgia timberland and an interest in the Alberta Box and Crate Co.

The senator said with three children attending college Carswell has a mortgage on his home.

Examination of the judge's judicial record showed he ruled against airport and barbershop segregation in Tallahassee, but also ruled against attempts to force the integration of swimming pools and theaters in the city.

In the 1965 swimming pool ruling, Carswell said closing the facilities following a "wade-in" by blacks "may seem tragically absurd but such decision is clearly under the law a function and responsibility of the elected public officials . . ."

Since neither whites nor blacks could be served by closed pools, he reasoned, there was nothing discriminatory about the city's refusal to provide facilities.

Within the U.S. Judicial Conference, Carswell has supported efforts to set new standards of ethical behavior for judges and to have them disclose their finances.

Eye Loophole In School Bill

Superintendents Would Get Windfall

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Loopholes in a bill pending in the Ohio Legislature could let county school superintendents collect their pay for three years after their jobs are abolished, it was learned Monday.

The situation could only arise if county school boards, under the proposal, are abolished in favor of Education Resource Centers.

The superintendents' salary, however, would continue until he resigns, retires or is employed in some capacity by the center, or until his contract with the abolished board expires.

Action to amend the bill, introduced by Sen. Ralph S. Regula, R-29 Navarre, is expected quickly.

The State Department of Education had reportedly decided that county school superintendents would be asked, if and when the boards are abolished, to help set up the Education Resource Centers.

The bill recommends the superintendents be asked to do so, but it wouldn't force them. Hence, they could technically, draw pay for three years without work.

In a brief Monday night House session, the administration introduced a bill to allow the Ohio Water Development Authority to issue bonds to finance solid waste disposal facilities.

Legislative committees will hold public hearings this week on 13 bills including teen-age drug abuse, a bill permitting university branches to issue bonds and notes for capital improvements, and one that would raise the minimum state payment to county mental health and retardation programs.

The House Judiciary Committee will examine the state's garnishment law. The administration seeks an increase in the sum a person can take home after his wages have been attached.

Stoutsville GI Presented Silver Star

BARRY SMITH

Pfc. Barry Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard V. Smith, Stoutsville, was awarded the Silver Star Jan. 10 for heroic action in Vietnam.

Pfc. Smith was in the battle of Black Virgin Mountain. All but eight of his platoon were killed or wounded and only four members of his squad escaped enemy fire.

He received the Silver Star for rescuing a wounded comrade. He ran across an open space of about 60 feet to help his companion when he realized that no one else could reach him.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith learned of the presentation of the medal in a letter they received from their son Monday.

PFC. Smith told his parents that "Someone was watching out for me," during his rescue effort. Although he was fired upon by the enemy, he was unharmed.

A graduate of Amanda Clearcreek High School, he attended Centralia School for 11 years.

He entered the service March 11 and completed his advanced infantry training at Ft. Gordon, Ga. He has been in Vietnam for five months.

He was made leader of his squad when the regular squad leader suffered a broken arm.

Price Boosts Erase Hikes In Paychecks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans in 1969 paid more for everything from houses to hamburger in the worst inflation in 20 years, the government said in reporting a 6.1 per cent rise in living costs for last year.

And some 45 million rank-and-file workers were caught in the squeeze of rising prices and a slowing economy under President Nixon's efforts to combat inflation, losing more purchasing power than they gained in pay, Monday's report said.

"For 1969 as a whole, increases in consumer prices eroded all of the gain in earnings," the Labor Department said in reporting that average pay of $117.25 a week last month was up $6.87 over the year but worth $7.15 less in the market place.

A big December grocery price rise of 1.6 per cent, accounting for half the month's rise in living costs, wound up 1969 food price hikes at a total of 7.2 per cent.

Hamburger at 64.2 cents a pound was up 12.3 cents or 24 per cent over the year, eggs at 77.9 cents a dozen were up 11.5 cents or 17 per cent, lettuce was 9.8 cents or 31 per cent a head higher at 40.8 cents and milk was 2 cents or 3.6 per cent higher per half-gallon over the year, said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Meat and bread also were higher, said the bureau.

"The costs of services associated with home ownership continued their upward trend," rising five-tenths of one per cent in December for a 6.7 per cent hike in housing costs for the year, it said.

Clothing and transportation were up 5.2 per cent each in 1969, medical care rose 6 per cent and recreation 3.8 per cent.

The December hike in overall living costs pushed the Consumer Price Index up six-tenths of one per cent to 131.3 per cent of its 1957-59 base.

The index figure means every $10 worth of typical family living costs 10 years ago cost $13.13 last month, 76 cents more than in 1968.

The 6.1 per cent rise in living costs for the year, highest for any 12-month period since November 1950, to November 1951 when Korean War wage-price controls were imposed, clipped more than 6 cents off the value of the 1968 dollar, and reduced the value of the 1957-59 dollar to 76.2 cents.

"The weekly take-home pay for workers with three dependents averaged $99.99 in 1969, 4.9 per cent higher than in 1968. After adjustment for price increases, however, real net spendable earnings—purchasing power in 1957-59 terms—averaged $78.30, four-tenths of one per cent lower than 1968's record and also below the 1965 and 1966 levels," the bureau said.

Construction workers gained $6.16 a week in purchasing power in 1969 and miners $3.14 because of higher wage increases in those industries, but workers in manufacturing averaged 34 cents less a week in purchasing power and workers in retail and wholesale trade lost 18 cents a week.

Talk Session Set In Cincy

CINCINNATI (AP) — A joint negotiating session was scheduled today in Cincinnati's nonuniformed employees strike after representatives of opposing sides made slight concessions Monday night.

In Middletown, 66 striking city workers agreed to return to work today while their wage dispute is being mediated.

Cincinnati's wage negotiating committee made a new proposal Monday night that called for an immediate 18-cent-an-hour or a 5 per cent hike, whichever is greater.

The union, representing nearly 1,500 striking sanitation, street and water maintenance workers, countered by reducing its demands for longevity pay and increased vacation time.

In the Middletown walkout, Judge George Cramer of Butler County Common Pleas Court, federal mediator Ed Windes and representatives of the union and city were to meet tonight at Dayton.

Long Distance Call Brings Zehner Contract Release

A long distance phone call from Saigon brought a young Circleville man a teaching contract and an early release from the service.

Stationed in Saigon since May, Zehner was scheduled to complete his tour of duty with the army in April when he learned he could get his release three months early with a teaching position promised him in Columbus.

He found that the written offer of Dr. Irvin F. Young, assistant superintendent for personnel of Columbus Public Schools would not be sufficient to process his release, Zehner would need a signed contract.

A long distance phone call reaching Young at 11:30 p.m. began steps for hiring the young serviceman. With the approval of the Board of Education, the contract was dispatched to the young man by air mail.

Zehner received his release and left Vietnam Jan. 14. He is now at home with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Carl Zehner, 131 E. Mound St., preparing to assume his new duties as sixth grade teacher in Courtwright elementary school this second semester.

The trip home was very different, young Zehner commented. There were quite a few soldiers traveling with him to Cleveland. All elated at the prospect of going home and tired from over 48 hours without any sleep, they made quite a display. "We were little better than the kids I'm going to be teaching soon," he admitted.

Zehner has been accepted at Ohio State University this fall, where he will begin studies for his masters degree in Administrative Education.

GOP Defectors

recommended $202 million for the "impacted aid" program; the bill provides more than $600 million.

The White House has termed that excessive and misdirected money.

But Scott said no Republican at the caucus defended the administration spending recommendation. He said the discussion centered on whether the appropriation should be $521 million, as it was last year, or $600 million, as the bill provides.

The program, which reaches into every state, offers extra aid to schools in areas where employees of federal installations swell attendance rosters.

Vermont Sen. George D. Aikens, the senior Republican, summed up the view of GOP dissenters:

"Seems he could have found a better bill to veto."

The issue is a hangover from the first session of the 91st Congress which adjourned Dec. 23. The bill is to finance the departments of Health, Education and Welfare, and Labor for the government year which began last July 1.

Shelved during December in the face of the Nixon veto threat, it was the first item on the calendar when Congress reconvened Monday.

The Senate spent most of a five-hour opening session arguing about it.

The House, which met for less than 90 minutes Monday handed four minor bills, faced the same kind of routine today.

But it is the House, not the Senate, which is first in line to test a Nixon veto. If Nixon vetoes the bill as advertised, his message would go to the House, which originated the measure.

Unless the House overrides a veto by two-thirds vote, the appropriation bill would be dead.

Pont Rejects Bid To Become Chief Of Draft

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — John Pont, head football coach at Indiana University, says he has passed up a presidential invitation to become director of Selective Service.

Pont said Monday night an aide to President Nixon telephoned him about three weeks ago asking him to succeed the retiring director, Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey.

The 42-year-old coach said he took three weeks to consider the offer because "it was too important to say no right off the bat. I finally decided I wanted to coach a little while longer. That is still my first love."

Ohio State's head football coach, Woody Hayes, denied a report late last year that the President had asked him to become head of the draft.

Hershey, Indiana born, will retire Feb. 16.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has scotched reports that the administration will propose a semi-public corporation to modernize and operate key links of railroad passenger service.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler Monday called the corporation railroad plan the "least likely" to be approved among a number under consideration.

This went directly against what a Department of Transportation official had said earlier. Theodore N. McDowell, Transportation's director of information, said the administration would send Congress a plan calling for a $100 million federal investment in such a corporation.

Ziegler said the administration has made no final decision in the type of plan that will be proposed to help ailing railroad passenger service.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A battle of the bottle has erupted among the airlines.

Three major competitors for transcontinental traffic—American, Trans World and United—brought the quarrel to light this week by filing with the Civil Aeronautics Board an agreement on cocktail service.

No matter what the other airlines do, they said, they intend to limit the cocktail or highball service on a flight to four ounces of distilled spirits per passenger—two two-ounce drinks apiece.

Before the start of jet service, a decade ago, the argument over the extent of in-flight drinking brought about an Air Transport Association (ATA) agreement, signed by 10 airlines, limiting service to two drinks apiece.

But as traffic and competition increased, the agreement began to spring leaks, and last November it fell apart altogether. "The airlines dropped out of the agreement one by one," an ATA spokesman said.

POW Radio Messages Disappointing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radio Moscow's global broadcast of messages from American prisoners of war brought disappointment to their families and an official protest from the State Department.

After the 30-minute shortwave broadcast Monday night, relatives of the men said they had heard the recorded messages before.

The State Department protested that the broadcasts amounted to Russian propaganda against the United States.

Russia billed the broadcasts as holiday messages from U.S. prisoners in Vietnam to their relatives. The Soviets said the messages "shed light on certain aspects of the war against Vietnam."

Secretary of State William P. Rogers ordered the U.S. protest, delivered to the Soviet embassy minister, Uri N. Pechernikov, by Asst. Secretary Martin J. Hillenbrand.

"We're puzzled and disturbed by the manner in which information on American prisoners is being conveyed to the American public and we can only assume that propaganda purposes are involved," Hillenbrand told the Russian diplomat.

Education Group Backs Draft Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reversing its previous stand, the American Council on Education has recommended no new 2S draft deferments be granted to students who start college in the future.

But the statement unanimously adopted by the council's board of directors said students currently granted the 2S deferments for fulltime courses of study should be allowed to finish their college before being drafted.

McGovern

McGovern said he had not worked out all the details of his plan, but it will contain these elements:

—Elimination of personal tax exemptions for children and replacement with an allowance of $50 to $65 a month for every child in the country.

—A guaranteed job for every able-bodied, working-age citizen —on public service projects if no private employment is available.

—An improved Social Security system, including a $100 a month minimum payment for an individual.

—A relatively small Special Public Assistance plan to provide income for those who cannot work and are not taken care of by other forms of aid.

McGovern said his plan would cost $10 billion the first year, compared with the administration plan's $4 billion.

McGovern said the children's allowance will be criticized as encouraging a higher birth rate when there is concern about a population explosion.

But, he said, the United States is the only advanced country in the world without such allowances. And in most of these nations with allowances the birth rate has not been affected at all.

The children's allowance, said McGovern, would "very nearly wipe out poverty among most families with children. It would also provide a critical boost in the income of middle American families."

Boudreau Named To Hall Of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Boudreau, former shortstop and playing manager of the Cleveland Indians, was elected to Baseball's Hall of Fame today.

Ralph Kiner, the slugging Pittsburgh outfielder who tied or led the National League in homers for seven consecutive seasons, finished second with 167 votes.

Gil Hodges, currently manager of the New York Mets, was third in the voting with 145 votes: Early Wynn, the most recent major league pitcher to win 300 games, fourth with 140 votes, and Enos Slaughter, hustling outfielder for the St. Louis Cardinals, fifth with 133 votes.

Burglaries Investigated By Sheriff

Two breaking and enterings are being investigated by the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department.

The Logan Bar and Grill was entered between 1:55 a.m. and 8 a.m. Monday and a quantity of beer and whiskey were taken. Also taken in the robbery was a 45 automatic pistol and a small amount of change.

Entry was gained by breaking a window in the rear of the building. Deputy Earl Kuhn is investigating.

The Sprouse General Store in Commercial Point was entered Monday night and merchandise taken. Inventory is being checked and Deputy Don Thompson is investigating.

Timothy James Williams, 20, New Holland, James D. McKirgan, 18, Washington C. H., and two juvenile boys were arrested for malicious destruction of property by the Pickaway County Sheriff.

Charged with $225 damage to windows at a home under construction on the Larey Waterloo Road, Williams and McKirgan, will appear in Circleville Municipal Court.

The two younger boys have appeared in juvenile court. Charges were dropped against one and the other has been placed on one year probation.

Day Center Explained To Jaycees

Mrs. Alton Carithers, director of the Community Action Day Care Center at the Community United Methodist Church, was the guest speaker at the Circleville Jaycee meeting recently.

Mrs. Carithers and her co-worker, Mrs. Warren Sobatka, showed slides of the day care center projects, such as teaching health habits, music, art and crafts.

Two hot meals are provided each day by the center. The church provides the space for its operation. It is designed for children ages three to five from low income families in Pickaway County.

The Jaycees have volunteered their help and cooperation in planning a project — Operation Dine-Out. Bob Sines is chairman of the project.

Sines and his committee will plan where dine-outs are to be held and the date of the event. Presently there are 20 children at the day care center which is open Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A February meeting at the local YMCA will include a karate demonstration.

GOP Defectors

recommended $202 million for the "impacted aid" program; the bill provides more than $600 million.

The White House has termed that excessive and misdirected money.

But Scott said no Republican at the caucus defended the administration spending recommendation. He said the discussion centered on whether the appropriation should be $521 million, as it was last year, or $600 million, as the bill provides.

The program, which reaches into every state, offers extra aid to schools in areas where employees of federal installations swell attendance rosters.

Vermont Sen. George D. Aikens, the senior Republican, summed up the view of GOP dissenters:

"Seems he could have found a better bill to veto."

The issue is a hangover from the first session of the 91st Congress which adjourned Dec. 23. The bill is to finance the departments of Health, Education and Welfare, and Labor for the government year which began last July 1.

Shelved during December in the face of the Nixon veto threat, it was the first item on the calendar when Congress reconvened Monday.

The Senate spent most of a five-hour opening session arguing about it.

The House, which met for less than 90 minutes Monday handled four minor bills, faced the same kind of routine today.

But it is the House, not the Senate, which is first in line to test a Nixon veto. If Nixon vetoes the bill as advertised, his message would go to the House, which originated the measure. Unless the House overrides a veto by two-thirds vote, the appropriation bill would be dead.

Pont Rejects Bid To Become Chief Of Draft

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — John Pont, head football coach at Indiana University, says he has passed up a presidential invitation to become director of Selective Service.

Pont said Monday night an aide to President Nixon telephoned him about three weeks ago asking him to succeed the retiring director, Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey.

The 42-year-old coach said he took three weeks to consider the offer because "it was too important to say no right off the bat. I finally decided I wanted to coach a little while longer. That is still my first love."

Ohio State's head football coach, Woody Hayes, denied a report late last year that the President had asked him to become head of the draft.

Hershey, Indiana born, will retire Feb. 18.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has scotched reports that the administration will propose a semi-public corporation to modernize and operate key links of railroad passenger service.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler Monday called the corporation railroad plan the "least likely" to be approved among a number under consideration.

This went directly against what a Department of Transportation official had said earlier. Theodore N. McDowell, Transportation's director of information, said the administration would send Congress a plan calling for a $100 million federal investment in such a corporation.

Ziegler said the administration has made no final decision in the type of plan that will be proposed to help ailing railroad passenger service.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A battle of the bottle has erupted among the airlines.

Three major competitors for transcontinental traffic—American, Trans World and United—brought the quarrel to light this week by filing with the Civil Aeronautics Board an agreement on cocktail service.

No matter what the other airlines do, they said, they intend to limit the cocktail or highball service on a flight to four ounces of distilled spirits per passenger—two two-ounce drinks apiece.

Before the start of jet service, a decade ago, the argument over the extent of in-flight drinking brought about an Air Transport Association (ATA) agreement, signed by 10 airlines, limiting service to two drinks apiece.

But as traffic and competition increased, the agreement began to spring leaks, and last November it fell apart altogether. "The airlines dropped out of the agreement one by one," an ATA spokesman said.

POW Radio Messages Disappointing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radio Moscow's global broadcast of messages from American prisoners of war brought disappointment to their families and an official protest from the State Department.

After the 30-minute shortwave broadcast Monday night, relatives of the men said they had heard the recorded messages before.

The State Department protested that the broadcasts amounted to Russian propaganda against the United States.

Russia billed the broadcasts as holiday messages from U.S. prisoners in Vietnam to their relatives. The Soviets said the messages "shed light on certain aspects of the war against Vietnam."

Secretary of State William P. Rogers ordered the U.S. protest, delivered to the Soviet embassy minister, Uri N. Pecherniakov, by Asst. Secretary Martin J. Hillenbrand.

"We're puzzled and disturbed by the manner in which information on American prisoners is being conveyed to the American public and we can only assume that propaganda purposes are involved," Hillenbrand told the Russian diplomat.

Education Group Backs Draft Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reversing its previous stand, the American Council on Education has recommended no new 2S draft deferments be granted to students who start college in the future.

But the statement unanimously adopted by the council's board of directors said students currently granted the 2S deferments for fulltime courses of study should be allowed to finish their college before being drafted.

McGovern said he had not worked out all the details of his plan, but it will contain these elements:

—Elimination of personal tax exemptions for children and replacement with an allowance of $50 to $85 a month for every child in the country.

—A guaranteed job for every able-bodied, working-age citizen — on public service projects if no private employment is available.

—An improved Social Security system, including a $100 a month minimum payment for an individual.

—A relatively small Special Public Assistance plan to provide income for those who cannot work and are not taken care of by other forms of aid.

McGovern said his plan would cost $10 billion the first year, compared with the administration plan's $4 billion.

McGovern said the children's allowance will be criticized as encouraging a higher birth rate when there is concern about a population explosion.

But, he said, the United States is the only advanced country in the world without such allowances. And in most of these nations with allowances the birth rate has not been affected at all.

The children's allowance, said McGovern, would "very nearly wipe out poverty among most families with children. It would also provide a critical boost in the income of middle American families."

Stock List On Skids

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices continued to slide lower in moderate noon time trading today with glamor stocks widely mixed.

The glamor took sharp losses in the past two sessions, dragging the market down with them, analysts noted.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 0.88 to 775.21, close to its low for the day.

IBM was off 4 to 346 on an active turnover. The stock lost 30 1/2 points in the past two sessions and Friday started the glamor downside, some analysts said. The company last week announced lower fourth quarter earnings.

Among glamor gainers on the Big Board were Telex, up 3 at 13 1/2, and Control Data, up 1 at 99 1/2.

Polaroid, headed the most-active list, off 5 at 106 1/2. The company has denied reports that it is cutting production of colorplate cameras.

Xerox was off 1 1/2 to 104 1/2. Among major categories, aircrafts were lower, as were utilities, chemicals, rails, oils and tobaccos. Metals, electronics, and airlines were higher.

The AP 60-stock average at noon was off 1.1 to 286.8 with industrials, off 1.7, rails off .8, and utilities off .2.

Syntex headed the most-active list on the American exchange under the influence of block trading, off 7 1/2 to 44 1/2, well below its closing 1969-70 low of 49 1/2.

Other actives on the Amex included NMS Industries, off 2 at 12; Astrodata, off 1 1/2 at 13 1/2; Marshall Industries, up 2 1/2 at 52 1/2; Solitron, off 1 1/2 at 28; Milgo Electronics, up 2 1/2 at 72; and Slick, up 1 1/2 at 23.

Boudreau Named To Hall Of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Boudreau, former shortstop and playing manager of the Cleveland Indians, was elected to Baseball's Hall of Fame today.

Boudreau, 52, finished this last year in the balloting when Stan Musial and Roy Campanella were elected. He received 232 of the 300 votes cast this time by the Baseball Writers Association of America, seven more than required for election.

Ralph Kiner, the slugging Pittsburgh outfielder who died or led the National League in homers for seven consecutive seasons, finished second with 167 votes.

Gil Hodge, currently manager of the New York Mets, was third in the voting with 145 votes: Early Wynn, the most recent major league pitcher to win 300 games, fourth with 140 votes, and Enos Slaughter, hustling outfielder for the St. Louis Cardinals, fifth with 133 votes.

Dear Abby: Boyfriend Needs Loan, Not Love!

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a respectable 29-year-old woman who lives alone and support myself.

I recently met a very attractive man (31) who showed a very serious interest in me right from the start. He spoke of our future together and I honestly believed that I had finally found my man. He asked me how much I had in the bank, and I told him. Then he asked to borrow $800. He is a salesman and said he was doing "fabulously" well, so this didn't add up. I asked him if he'd sign a note, and he said if he wanted to sign a note, he'd borrow from a bank.

Now I don't know what to think. Half of me tells me not to trust him and half of me tells me I love him.

BAFFLED

DEAR BAFFLED: Listen to the half with the brains in it and tell your boyfriend to get lost. Lover boys who mix money with moonlight are poor risks.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently moved into a nice three-story building in an apartment complex. Our problem has to do with the couple living directly beneath us.

Everything they do is on a fortissimo level. We would not complain about ordinary noises, as both my husband and I teach and are gone during the daytime, but the evening noise is of a very intimate nature and it gets to be very annoying.

I imagine they are newlyweds because we have been disturbed by the sounds of their love-making at all hours of the night and early morning. Weekends are unpredictable. It is impossible for us to have guests over since these sounds can be easily heard in our living room.

The apartments are well built, believe me. These people are

Brothers Serve On Kentucky Court

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky is the only state to have had three native sons serving together not once but twice on the U.S. Supreme Court.

In the 1930s Justices Stanley Reed, James McReynolds and Louis Brandeis were on the court together.

In the late 1940s and early '50s, it was Chief Justice Fred Vinson and Justices Reed and Wiley Rutledge.

LOUD! We have never heard any other neighbors.

Moving is out of the question since we have signed a lease, and besides, my husband's library of about 4,000 volumes took considerable time and money to set up here.

Is there a tactful way to deal with these people?

"THE PEOPLE UPSTAIRS"

DEAR PEOPLE: The direct approach is the best one. Either ask your husband to have a man-to-man talk with the man downstairs. Or YOU have a woman-to-woman talk with the lady.

DEAR ABBY: A few weeks ago my parents had a big fight with the family across the street. (They were once very good friends.) My father told us kids that we were never to set foot on their property again, and we were forbidden to even speak to any of their children.

My problem is that I care a lot for the daughter of those people. In fact, we dig each other a lot more than our parents know.

Not wanting to lie and sneak, I told my father that I didn't think he had any right to tell me that I couldn't even speak to this girl any more just because he had a fight with her folks. He got real mad and said if I ever spoke to that girl again, he'd make me sorry. Do you think that's fair? Abby, I can't stop seeing her, and I don't intend to. I am 17, and so is she. I would like your opinion.

CAN'T SLEEP

DEAR CAN'T: I, too, think your father is being very unfair. But until you are able to leave his bed and board and make your own way, he's the boss. And unless he's a stubborn, bull-headed tyrant, if you behave yourself and don't show your anger, he may reconsider and reverse his decision.

DEAR ABBY: That gal signed "BUNNY" should have signed herself "DUMB BUNNY." She whined to you about all the nice single gals who went on skiing week-ends in search of husbands, and found only married ski bums. Then she asks YOU to appeal to the wives of these ski bums to keep their husbands home.

Tell BUNNY that just because a man says he's "married," doesn't necessarily mean he is. I know lots of skiers who claim to be married just to eliminate Bunny after the week-end.

Supreme Court Nixes Draft Of Protesters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday stripped draft boards of the power to speed up the induction of Vietnam war protesters.

Justice William O. Douglas, in a 5-3 decision, said the court had searched federal draft laws in vain for any clues that Congress desired to give draft boards this authority.

He said "it is a broad, roving authority, a type of administrative absolutism not congenial to our lawmaking traditions."

The only punitive power draft law provides, Douglas said, is prosecution of registrants who refuse to submit to induction order.

Justices Hugo L. Black, William J. Brennan Jr., Byron R. White and Thurgood Marshall supported the decision. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, Potter Stewart and John M. Harlan concurred in its effect on a Minnesota man but would have allowed local boards some of the authority the majority denied them.

The court ruled in the case of David Earl Gutknecht, 22, of Gaylord, Minn., whose draft call was accelerated when he turned in his draft card at an antiwar protest in Minneapolis in 1967.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Florida Gov. Claude Kirk told the Supreme Court Monday Florida is "financially and physically unable" to meet the terms of the court's order for immediate school desegregation.

Kirk said he was ordering Florida school districts not to change their school calendars during mid-year.

"The state of Florida stands ready to comply with the order of any tribunal," the motion said, "but is presently financially and physically unable to do so and is faced with a situation of impossibility of performance."

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky has embarked on what it believes is the first state effort in this country to determine conditions causing coalworkers pneumoconiosis, or "black lung."

Sen. Richard Russell Reaches Senate Record

By DILLON GRAHAM Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Brevard Russell became today the Senate's second-longest serving member—a political lifetime that has left a clear imprint on every presidential administration since the birth of Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal.

This, the Georgia Democrat's staff says, is the 13,523rd day in the Senate for the 72-year-old bachelor, a day more than Sen. Francis Warren, R-Wyo., served in two segments from Nov. 18, 1890 to Nov. 24, 1929.

And Russell, his white hair thinning and his softly accented voice on the Senate floor now mostly a whisper, could surpass Arizona Democrat Carl Hayden's longevity record of 41 years and nine months if he seeks re-election as expected in 1972.

Another Georgian, Democratic Rep. Carl Vinson, retired after the 1964 session after setting a service record of 50 years in the House.

Russell, who became dean of the Senate following Hayden's 1968 retirement, was sworn into office Jan. 12, 1933, after a term as Georgia's youngest governor.

"I well remember that day," he said from his Winder, Ga., home. "I remember the aura of the Senate, sitting with such giants as (William E.) Borah and (George) Norris. I felt I had accomplished something just to be getting there."

Has he set sights on Hayden's record?

"I'm just doing the best I can while I'm there in the Senate," he replied. "I haven't set any point as to how long I might be in the Senate. When I ever get to the point where I feel I can't do the job, I'll quit."

MY LAI "CASUALTY" — U.S. Army Spec. 4 William L. Hahn (above) was a legal clerk at Ft. Benning, Ga., until he gave an interview to his hometown newspaper, the News Journal in Mansfield, Ohio, about the My Lai "massacre" trial of Lt. William Calley Jr. Now he is mopping floors. "It's the whole Vietnam war and the system of military justice which will be on trial instead of him," Hahn, 20, an enlistee, told the paper.

As for the problems of the 1970s, Russell said, "The removal of (the Vietnam) war from the agenda of national problems becomes more and more important. If we can attain this, many other national problems, such as the one we currently are having with the economy, can be handled more easily."

Best known now perhaps as the leader of filibustering opposition to civil rights legislation, Russell garnered 263 Southern votes at the 1948 Democratic National Convention that nominated Harry S. Truman for president. Russell wasn't even there.

Four years later, after actively pursuing the presidential nomination, he got 292 of the 1,200 convention votes, losing his bid to Adlai Stevenson largely because he was branded as too sectional.

Truman once said Russell might have made the White House if he had come from somewhere other than the Old South.

Russell has always been a vigorous supporter of a strong national military posture regardless of the party in power. And except for civil rights he has fought for many of the liberal domestic programs advocated by the Democrats since he entered the Senate.

He cosponsored the law establishing the Tennessee Valley Authority and later fought for rural electrification, federally financed school lunches, parity for farm products and conservation. He also has been a major force behind the nation's space program.

An influential adviser to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, Russell stepped down last year as chairman of the Armed Services Committee to succeed Hayden as head of the powerful Appropriations Committee. He also followed Hayden as Senate president pro tem.

But his health, a major factor in his unannounced decision whether to seek re-election, has caused him to lessen his activity. While he regularly appears in the Senate and at committee sessions, the former master of the filibuster seldom addresses his colleagues on the floor—and then usually only in a whisper.

McCarthy Sees No Viet Progress

HONOLULU (AP) — Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., says the Paris peace talks will make no progress unless the Nixon administration changes its Vietnam policy.

McCarthy, in Honolulu to speak to the Democratic Action Group and the state Democratic central committee, told newsmen Sunday the only other thing which could change the stale-mated talks would be a change in the situation in Vietnam.

The Minnesota Democrat did not elaborate on his talks last week with the Viet Cong and North Vietnam diplomats in Paris or with Soviet leaders in Moscow.

Announcing the 35¢ coast-to-coast phone call.

Never before has it cost so little to call so far. And it's not based on any three-minute minimum, either. Not any more. Not after midnight. The 35¢ is for a minute. You don't pay for three minutes unless you talk for three minutes.

It's just part of the biggest long-distance rate reductions in the history of General Telephone.

Rates are way down on many interstate long-distance calls, based on the mileage, the time of day, and the type of call. (For instance, it'll cost a little more if you have direct dialing but don't use it.)

But even with our across-the-board rate reductions, we still have our 7-to-midnight reduced rates. Except that now they're in effect from 5 to midnight.

Reduced rates starting at five.

No more three-minute minimum after midnight.

It's the end of an era.

Dear Abby: Boyfriend Needs Loan, Not Love!

DEAR ABBY: I am a respectable 29-year-old woman who lives alone and support myself.

I recently met a very attractive man (31) who showed a very serious interest in me right from the start. He spoke of our future together and I honestly believed that I had finally found my man. He asked me how much I had in the bank, and I told him. Then he asked to borrow $800. He is a salesman and said he was doing "fabulously" well, so this didn't add up. I asked him if he'd sign a note, and he said if he wanted to sign a note, he'd borrow from a bank.

Now I don't know what to think. Half of me tells me not to trust him and half of me tells me I love him.

BAFFLED
DEAR BAFFLED: Listen to the half with the brains in it and tell your boyfriend to get lost. Lover boys who mix money with moonlight are poor risks.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently moved into a nice three-story building in an apartment complex. Our problem has to do with the couple living directly beneath us.

Everything they do is on a fortissimo level. We would not complain about ordinary noises, as both my husband and I teach and are gone during the daytime, but the evening noise is of a very intimate nature and it gets to be very annoying.

I imagine they are newlyweds because we have been disturbed by the sounds of their love-making at all hours of the night and early morning. Weekends are unpredictable. It is impossible for us to have guests over since these sounds can be easily heard in our living room.

The apartments are well built, believe me. These people are

Brothers Serve On Kentucky Court

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky is the only state to have had three native sons serving together not once but twice on the U.S. Supreme Court.

In the 1930s Justices Stanley Reed, James McReynolds and Louis Brandeis were on the court together.

In the late 1940s and early '50s, it was Chief Justice Fred Vinson and Justices Reed and Wiley Rutledge.

Supreme Court Nixes Draft Of Protesters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday stripped draft boards of the power to speed up the induction of Vietnam war protesters.

Justice William O. Douglas, in a 5-3 decision, said the court had searched federal draft laws in vain for any clues that Congress desired to give draft boards this authority.

He said "it is a broad, roving authority, a type of administrative absolutism not congenial to our lawmaking traditions."

The only punitive power draft law provides, Douglas said, is prosecution of registrants who refuse to submit to induction order.

Justices Hugo L. Black, William J. Brennan Jr., Byron R. White and Thurgood Marshall supported the decision. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, Potter Stewart and John M. Harlan concurred in its effect on a Minnesota man but would have allowed local boards some of the authority the majority denied them.

The court ruled in the case of David Earl Gutknecht, 22, of Gaylord, Minn., whose draft call was accelerated when he turned in his draft card at an antiwar protest in Minneapolis in 1967.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Florida Gov. Claude Kirk told the Supreme Court Monday Florida is "financially and physically unable" to meet the terms of the court's order for immediate school desegregation.

Kirk said he was ordering Florida school districts not to change their school calendars during mid-year.

"The state of Florida stands ready to comply with the order of any tribunal," the motion said, "but is presently financially and physically unable to do so and is faced with a situation of impossibility of performance."

Kentucky Studies Black Lung Disease

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky has embarked on what it believes is the first state effort in this country to determine conditions causing coalworkers pneumoconiosis, or "black lung."

State mine safety inspectors have been trained in using dust-sampling devices and now are measuring the amount of dust in Kentucky coal mines.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Brevard Russell became today the Senate's second-longest serving member—a political lifetime that has left a clear imprint on every presidential administration since the birth of Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal.

This, the Georgia Democrat's staff says, is the 13,523rd day in the Senate for the 72-year-old bachelor, a day more than Sen. Francis Warren, R-Wyo., served in two segments from Nov. 18, 1890 to Nov. 24, 1929.

And Russell, his white hair thinning and his softly accented voice on the Senate floor now mostly a whisper, could surpass Arizona Democrat Carl Hayden's longevity record of 41 years and nine months if he seeks re-election as expected in 1972.

Another Georgian, Democratic Rep. Carl Vinson, retired after the 1964 session after setting a service record of 50 years in the House.

Russell, who became dean of the Senate following Hayden's 1968 retirement, was sworn into office Jan. 12, 1933, after a term as Georgia's youngest governor.

"I well remember that day," he said from his Winder, Ga., home. "I remember the aura of the Senate, sitting with such giants as (William E.) Borah and (George) Norris. I felt I had accomplished something just to be getting there."

Has he set sights on Hayden's record?

"I'm just doing the best I can while I'm there in the Senate," he replied. "I haven't set any point as to how long I might be in the Senate. When I ever get to the point where I feel I can't do the job, I'll quit."

MY LAI "CASUALTY" — U.S. Army Spec. 4 William L. Hahn (above) was a legal clerk at Ft. Benning, Ga., until he gave an interview to his hometown newspaper, the News Journal in Mansfield, Ohio, about the My Lai "massacre" trial of Lt. William Calley Jr. Now he is mopping floors. "It's the whole Vietnam war and the system of military justice which will be on trial instead of him," Hahn, 20, an enlistee, told the paper.

As for the problems of the 1970s, Russell said, "The removal of (the Vietnam) war from the agenda of national problems becomes more and more important. If we can attain this, many other national problems, such as the one we currently are having with the economy, can be handled more easily."

Best known now perhaps as the leader of filibustering opposition to civil rights legislation, Russell garnered 263 Southern votes at the 1948 Democratic National Convention that nominated Harry S. Truman for president. Russell wasn't even there.

Four years later, after actively pursuing the presidential nomination, he got 292 of the 1,200 convention votes, losing his bid to Adlai Stevenson largely because he was branded as too sectional.

Truman once said Russell might have made the White House if he had come from somewhere other than the Old South.

Russell has always been a vigorous supporter of a strong national military posture regardless of the party in power. And except for civil rights he has fought for many of the liberal domestic programs advocated by the Democrats since he entered the Senate.

He cosponsored the law establishing the Tennessee Valley Authority and later fought for rural electrification, federally financed school lunches, parity for farm products and conservation. He also has been a major force behind the nation's space program.

An influential adviser to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, Russell stepped down last year as chairman of the Armed Services Committee to succeed Hayden as head of the powerful Appropriations Committee. He also followed Hayden as Senate president pro tem.

But his health, a major factor in his unannounced decision whether to seek re-election, has caused him to lessen his activity. While he regularly appears in the Senate and at committee sessions, the former master of the filibuster seldom addresses his colleagues on the floor—and then usually only in a whisper.

Russell, who has suffered for years from emphysema, is vulnerable to respiratory illness and spent several days last month in a hospital recuperating from a virus. Doctors thought last March he had lung cancer but found no malignancy after five weeks of cobalt therapy.

McCarthy Sees No Viet Progress

HONOLULU (AP) — Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., says the Paris peace talks will make no progress unless the Nixon administration changes its Vietnam policy.

McCarthy, in Honolulu to speak to the Democratic Action Group and the state Democratic central committee, told newsmen Sunday the only other thing which could change the stalemated talks would be a change in the situation in Vietnam.

The Minnesota Democrat did not elaborate on his talks last week with the Viet Cong and North Vietnam diplomats in Paris or with Soviet leaders in Moscow.

Questioning The Pill

Contraceptive drugs have swirled into heated controversy again, largely as a result of conflicting testimony offered by various medical "experts" to congressional investigators. The testimony has created mammoth confusion in the public mind.

There is little comfort to the estimated 8.5 million American women currently using contraceptive drugs to hear Dr. Robert Kistner, a well-known researcher affiliated with the Harvard Medical School, say the pill is safer than pregnancy and far safer than a cigarette smoking when they also read the testimony of Dr. Roy Hertz, of the Population Council and Rockefeller University, that doctors should treat each patient like a research project because so little is known about the effects of the drugs.

About all the two doctors agreed on was that there was a need for more research on a large scale to satisfactorily determine the effects of the drugs. With the number of users that should not be too difficult a project for the manufacturers, medical profession and government health agencies.

A comprehensive study is the only way to answer the questions which have been raised by professionals whose credentials are unquestioned.

Noise Vs Noise

A sort of do-it-yourself relief has been suggested for persons living under the constant roar of jetports. Acoustical experts are working on the possibilities of muffling such sounds with a steady drone of household noises.

All one need do, as the theory goes, is to keep something humming inside the house all the time — the dishwasher, air-conditioner, radios.

Then anything from outside becomes just another sound, even if it sometimes rattles the dishes.

The argument fits neatly into the solution to noise pollution is simply to get used to it. It also helps rationalize the steady blaring of TV and radio that is part of some households anyway, with or without teenagers.

Noisy air-conditioners and other highly audible appliances would become assets — or at least, the lesser of evils.

Nothing is said, of course, as to what would happen to the nervous system under such calculated assault.

Lingering Superstition

People "knock on wood," the most common of an estimated 80,000 superstitions, because they are immature, or feel a compulsion to call on magical powers, or for protection against evil which they fear will conquer them in the competition of life.

The "knock on wood" superstition — to which some persons pay obeisance seriously, others with a wry smile, and still others while tapping their heads jokingly — apparently stems from a primitive belief of protective gods inside trees. Thus touching wood when in a boastful mood is superstitiously thought to ward off evil consequences.

Despite a gradual diminution in superstitious beliefs over the years, superstition will disappear not alone because of advances in knowledge but when human beings outgrow their feeling of helplessness and hence no longer feel the need for dependence upon magic.

You're Telling Me

Brown University scientists are collecting statistics on genes. It's genes, not Washington, that got you in the shape you're in.

The scientists think enough information on genes will enable them to predict and control man's evolution for the next four billion years. It's a longterm project.

The Brown scientists hope to learn the frequency with which a certain gene appears in the population. Four billion years should be enough.

The scientists are studying mutation, which is a sudden change in structure of a gene that causes new types of individuals. Probably they want to find out if two heads are better than one.

Economics are a factor in man's development. If a man loses his shirt, maybe all he's got left are his genes.

The scientists say that for man to control future evolution it is essential to understand the mechanism of past evolution. Or, how can you know where you're going if you don't know where you've been?

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

WEEKS OF foul weather this past summer proved particularly disastrous for inn-keepers on the New Jersey and Long Island shores. One was overheard lamenting, "The rain not only kept all my rooms empty, but now the whole place is too wet to burn."

Pat McCormick, a very funny man indeed, is searching the highways and byways of California for the "oldest living citizens of the state" — to participate in the upcoming two-hundredth anniversary thereof. He claims he's found one codger so old his first job was parking covered wagons. Another lady is so advanced in years that birth control pills laugh at her. And candidate number three, blowing out 100 candles on his birthday cake, had his dentures melted by the heat.

On the side, Pat McCormick specializes in transplants, he confides. He put the heart of a mouse in an elephant, for example, and the very next day the elephant ate a cheese factory. But for putting the heart of a dog into a stricken patient, he can't collect payment. The patient keeps burying the bills in his back yard.

A tipsy guest accosted his hostess to inquire, "Do lemons have legs?" "Lemons with legs?" scoffed the hostess. "You must be out of your mind." "Oh, dear," sighed the guest. "In that case I'm afraid I've just squeezed your canary into my martini!"

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Disease of my gall bladder is my weakness. I know little about where the gall bladder is situated, what it does, and why it causes trouble in some people and not in others. Can you clarify my confusion?

Dear Mr. I: The gall bladder is a small, but very efficient organ that lies just underneath the liver high in the right side of the abdomen. Its prime purpose is to act as a reservoir and collect bile that is manufactured in the liver. Bile is probably one of the most valuable factors in the digestion of food.

When food is eaten, especially fatty foods, a message is sent from the small intestine to the gall bladder which then responds by pouring the needed amount of bile into the intestines through a very fine duct. Such is the healthy process by which bile is stored and used when needed.

The gall bladder, as an organ, is subject to infection, irritation, an even injury. When it becomes inflamed, with or without the formation of stones, it may function poorly and be responsible for a great many symptoms. The pain of gall bladder disease frequently radiates to the back and to the shoulder blades while the symptoms of nausea and vomiting may resemble many intestinal disorders.

"That's exactly what I have" is a common friendly attitude. The chances are great that "what I have" is caused by a totally different condition and may not be gall bladder disease at all.

Stones can form in the gall bladder, in the small ducts and in the larger common duct. These stones are deposits of some of the salts and pigments that are normally found in bile. X-rays, taken with special dyes, can show the presence of stones. The speed with which the gall bladder empties can be followed and gives a good index of health.

Still confused? See your doctor.

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

It's too late to do much about Biafra, beyond urging mercy toward the victims and pouring in food and medical aid to save the starving and the wounded who have barely staggered through the most horrifying war of the Sixties. But it isn't too late to reappraise our own conduct in standing politely aside while two million Ibos died, mainly from starvation, because British and Soviet power politics had decided that Nigeria must be preserved as a single sovereign entity rather than become two countries.

What has happened is that we have watched once more while our own kind have been done in. The Ibos of Nigeria are the Christians and the enterprisers of their part of West Africa. They tried to secede and set up their own government when the Moslem Hausas massacred some twenty thousand Ibos in something that was pretty close to an attempt at tribal genocide. But, as had happened before in the Congo when we sided with the heterogeneous UN mob against Moise Tshombe, a good friend of the West who wanted to proclaim the independence of Katanga, we let the abstraction of national sovereignty come between us and our natural friends. The British were committed to the preservation of the Nigerian status quo, and our State Department is never willing to risk the displeasure of London when it comes to matters affecting the course of events in parts of the old British Empire.

If the big powers had kept out of the Biafran war, the Ibos might have made their independence stick. They weren't defeated until Russian-made artillery and Russian bombers and fighter planes, added to the steady flow of British weaponry, cracked the last Biafran defenses. It is perfectly true that if we had sent arms to Biafra it might have led to a confrontation with the Soviets (whom we are trying to bring to the point of accepting nuclear arms limitation), and to harsh words with Harold Wilson's Labor government in Britain.

But we might have really tried to do something through the United Nations. At one time Luis Kutner, a Chicago liberal lawyer, and Lee Edwards, the conservative Washington publicist, had an agreement worked out with four African nations, Gabon, the Ivory Coast, Tanzania and Zambia, to go to the UN with an application for Biafran membership. If Biafra had been accepted as a new sovereign state within the world body, the war in Nigeria would have automatically ceased to be a civil war, and the UN could have tried to do something to stop it. The Soviets would have vetoed anything positive, of course, but at least they would have been branded before the world as hypocrites when they come talking of peace.

The Kutner-Edwards proposition languished because no strong nation could be found to sponsor it. And the Ibos, in their extremity, were unable to mount a good propaganda campaign in the West for their cause. So the war dragged on for two-and-one-half years, to the end that was foreordained because of something that may have to do with British oil politics in West Africa and to the Soviet desire to get a sub-Saharan African foothold — and possibly a naval staging base to protect the ships they send around the Cape of Good Hope to the Indian Ocean and the port of Haiphong, in North Vietnam.

The whole thing is a triumph for cynicism. The Soviets have actually had the gall to label the defeat of Biafra a "fiasco" for the western powers. Pravda, in Moscow, hailed the Nigerian victory as one that would help Nigerians to see "who is their enemy and who is a friend." The Soviet press accused British, Dutch and U.S. oil companies of encouraging Biafra, which is about as far from the truth as could possibly be imagined. The oil companies, while they kept quiet about their things, had much more to gain in a material sense from a Nigerian victory that would restore order throughout the whole country, Biafra included. The real iniquity is that Britain, the Netherlands and the U.S. all combined to make a de facto united front with the Soviets in preferring a state of affairs in Nigeria that would keep the Ibos from the self-determination that Woodrow Wilson used to talk about so eloquently.

Well, the milk is spilled. We never did criticize the British. Maybe they will show some reciprocity now and stop lecturing us for Vietnam.

WASHINGTON MEMO

By Congressman
CHALMERS P. WYLIE
15th District of Ohio

On Jan. 19 the second session of the 91st Congress reconvened with many major issues still pending. Although the first session of the 91st Congress lasted for almost a full year, it did not finish action on major proposals pertaining to the following: Labor, Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriation Bill, which the President has threatened to veto; the Foreign Aid Bill, which is caught up in a Senate-House dispute over aid to Nationalist China; welfare reform, which is pending in the House Ways and Means Committee; revenue sharing; voting rights; electoral reform; the curbing of the distribution of obscene materials; cigarette advertising; postal reform; mass transportation; airport users' revenue; food stamps; water and air pollution; consumer protection; legislative reorganization; prayers in public buildings and schools, and the farm program.

We mentioned the problem of inflation in last week's column and the need for responsible action on the part of Congress, if this fight is to be won. Then, too, we wrote about the crime problem and the urgent need for Congressional action here. It is anticipated that many of the above subjects will be included in President Nixon's first State of the Union message to be delivered on Jan. 22.

Most political analysts termed the first session of the 91st Congress one of the least productive in history, although 21,553 measures were introduced in both houses on almost every conceivable subject. The Democrats must answer this charge as they hold a majority of 244 to 189 in the House and 57 to 43 in the United States Senate. Having control of both houses, the Democrats, also, have the chairmanship of every committee in the House and Senate, as well as the majority leadership posts. 190 public bills became law. But, important appropriations bills were not passed until the last moments before adjournment causing much anxiety regarding the funding of many important programs.

On the other hand, President Nixon sent 31 major messages to Congress urging a whole new approach to many domestic problems, including the control of crime and welfare reforms. Whereas, the Congress, as a whole, did not receive very good ratings, the President, in a recent Gallup Poll, received a positive rating of 68 per cent. In my own district, it was even better — almost 77 per cent.

The legislative schedule in 1969 resulted in a total of 333 roll calls in the House. I was present and voting 333 times. You will note that my voting record is reflective of your views as expressed through my questionnaires.

Just before adjournment of the first session of the 91st Congress, the Senate Judiciary Committee reported the Omnibus Drug Bill, S. 3426, which both modifies and codifies existing federal drug control laws. This bill would eliminate mandatory minimum sentences for drug offenses for all but the professional criminal, i.e., large-scale narcotics distributors and importers. It would make simple possession of a narcotic, as a first offense, a misdemeanor, rather than a felony. For example, under present law, first-offense possession of narcotics or marijuana draws a federal penalty of two to ten years and a fine up to $20,000. S. 3426 would reduce the sentence to up to one year, with a fine up to $5,000. It would initiate a system of suspended sentences, probation and parole for drug offenders, considered to be non-criminal. Under present law, such alternatives are available only for first-offense possession violators. It would allow federal investigators with a search warrant for drugs to enter suspect premises without notice.

It would classify drugs, for enforcement and administrative purposes, according to abuse potential, effect, harmfulness and level of accepted medical use. The Attorney General would retain control over drug classification but would be required to seek the advice of the Health, Education and Welfare Secretary when making any changes in classification. It would add three major tranquilizers — lithium, valium, and meprobarbital (Miltown) — to the list of controlled drugs.

It would create a commission to study all aspects of marijuana. The commission would report its findings to Congress within two years. Law enforcement officials strongly favor this measure.

In years past the "farm bloc" was a powerful political force. The traditional strategy of farm program advocates was an accommodation between commodity and regional interests. When the accommodation was reached, the farm bill passed because there were sufficient Congressmen from rural areas.

Today the legislative picture is quite different. So-called rural Congressmen are now counted in the dozens instead of the hundreds. Only 31 House Members have 25 per cent or more of their constituents classified as farmers.

Farm programs and agricultural interests have been under increasing attack on a number of fronts. Many people question the cost of the major commodity and farm programs. They had heard so many grandiose promises followed by dismal results over so many years that few, including farmers, are longer impressed with existing farm programs.

In the past year a sincere bi-partisan effort has been made to work for the improvement of our nation's agricultural program by a process of evolution rather than radical new changes in policy.

It becomes obvious that the major commodity programs of the 1970's cannot be successfully constructed along the line of past or present programs. There is increasing pressure on Congress to return agriculture to the free market laws of supply and demand.

The Administration will soon offer a new agriculture program.

Questioning The Pill

Contraceptive drugs have swirled into heated controversy again, largely as a result of conflicting testimony offered by various medical "experts" to congressional investigators. The testimony has created mammoth confusion in the public mind.

There is little comfort to the estimated 8.5 million American women currently using contraceptive drugs to hear Dr. Robert Kistner, a well-known researcher affiliated with the Harvard Medical School, say the pill is safer than pregnancy and far safer than a cigarette smoking when they also read the testimony of Dr. Roy Hertz, of the Population Council and Rockefeller University, that doctors should treat each patient like a research project because so little is known about the effects of the drugs.

About all the two doctors agreed on was that there was a need for more research on a large scale to satisfactorily determine the effects of the drugs. With the number of users that should not be too difficult a project for the manufacturers, medical profession and government health agencies.

A comprehensive study is the only way to answer the questions which have been raised by professionals whose credentials are unquestioned.

Noise Vs Noise

A sort of do-it-yourself relief has been suggested for persons living under the constant roar of jetports. Acoustical experts are working on the possibilities of muffling such sounds with a steady drone of household noises.

All one need do, as the theory goes, is to keep something humming inside the house all the time — the dishwasher, air-conditioner, radios.

Then anything from outside becomes just another sound, even if it sometimes rattles the dishes.

The argument fits neatly into the solution to noise pollution is simply to get used to it. It also helps rationalize the steady blaring of TV and radio that is part of some households anyway, with or without teenagers.

Noisy air-conditioners and other highly audible appliances would become assets — or at least, the lesser of evils.

Nothing is said, of course, as to what would happen to the nervous system under such calculated assault.

Lingering Superstition

People "knock on wood," the most common of an estimated 80,000 superstitions, because they are immature, or feel a compulsion to call on magical powers, or for protection against evil which they fear will conquer them in the competition of life.

The "knock on wood" superstition — to which some persons pay obeisance seriously, others with a wry smile, and still others while tapping their heads jokingly — apparently stems from a primitive belief of protective gods inside trees. Thus touching wood when in a boastful mood is superstitiously thought to ward off evil consequences.

Despite a gradual diminution in superstitious beliefs over the years, superstition will disappear not alone because of advances in knowledge but when human beings outgrow their feeling of helplessness and hence no longer feel the need for dependence upon magic.

Brown University scientists are collecting statistics on genes. It's genes, not Washington, that got you in the shape you're in.

The scientists think enough information on genes will enable them to predict and control man's evolution for the next four billion years. It's a longterm project.

The Brown scientists hope to learn the frequency with which a certain gene appears in the population. Four billion years should be enough.

The scientists are studying mutation, which is a sudden change in structure of a gene that causes new types of individuals. Probably they want to find out if two heads are better than one.

Economics are a factor in man's development. If a man loses his shirt, maybe all he's got left are his genes.

The scientists say that for man to control future evolution it is essential to understand the mechanism of past evolution. Or, how can you know where you're going if you don't know where you've been?

Try and Stop Me

WEEKS OF foul weather this past summer proved particularly disastrous for inn-keepers on the New Jersey and Long Island shores. One was overheard lamenting, "The rain not only kept all my rooms empty, but now the whole place is too wet to burn."

Pat McCormick, a very funny man indeed, is searching the highways and byways of California for the "oldest living citizens of the state" — to participate in the upcoming two-hundredth anniversary thereof. He claims he's found one codger so old his first job was parking covered wagons. Another lady is so advanced in years that birth control pills laugh at her. And candidate number three, blowing out 100 candles on his birthday cake, had his dentures melted by the heat.

On the side, Pat McCormick specializes in transplants, he confides. He put the heart of a mouse in an elephant, for example, and the very next day the elephant ate a cheese factory. But for putting the heart of a dog into a stricken patient, he can't collect payment. The patient keeps burying the bills in his back yard.

A tipsy guest accosted his hostess to inquire, "Do lemons have legs?" "Lemons with legs?" scoffed the hostess. "You must be out of your mind." "Oh, dear," sighed the guest. "In that case I'm afraid I've just squeezed your canary into my martini!"

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Disease of my gall bladder is my weakness. I know little about where the gall bladder is situated, what it does, and why it causes trouble in some people and not in others. Can you clarify my confusion?

Mr. L. T. I., Illinois
Dear Mr. I: The gall bladder is a small, but very efficient organ that lies just underneath the liver high in the right side of the abdomen. Its prime purpose is to act as a reservoir and collect bile that is manufactured in the liver. Bile is probably one of the most valuable factors in the digestion of food.

When food is eaten, especially fatty foods, a message is sent from the small intestine to the gall bladder which then responds by pouring the needed amount of bile into the intestines through a very fine duct. Such is the healthy process by which bile is stored and used when needed.

The gall bladder, as an organ, is subject to infection, irritation, an even injury. When it becomes inflamed, with or without the formation of stones, it may function poorly and be responsible for a great many symptoms. The pain of gall bladder disease frequently radiates to the back and to the shoulder blades while the symptoms of nausea and vomiting may resemble many intestinal disorders.

"That's exactly what I have" is a common friendly attitude. The chances are great that "what I have" is caused by a totally different condition and may not be gall bladder disease at all.

Stones can form in the gall bladder, in the small ducts and in the larger common duct. These stones are deposits of some of the salts and pigments that are normally found in bile. X-rays, taken with special dyes, can show the presence of stones. The speed with which the gall bladder empties can be followed and gives a good index of health.

Still confused? See your doctor.

Is there any truth to the statement that red meats can cause high blood pressure? Or that fish is a brain food?

Miss D. K., Connecticut
Dear Miss K.: These are two of the hundreds of myths and factless fancies that thrive from generation to generation. Both of these ideas have no basis in fact. People hold on tenaciously to myths and unscientific concepts about nutrition. This leads many to seek and buy outrageously expensive "health food" products whose intrinsic nutrition can be obtained in any sensible diet. Now I am sure that I am in trouble with the health and food faddists who can create hundreds of other fallacies and insist that they are proven facts.

Has polio really been eradicated all over the world?

Mr. J. McL., New Jersey
Dear Mr. McL.: I believe that it is an accepted fact that polio is a "stamped out" disease when proper vaccination and immunization has been given and maintained.

Tragedy Of Biafra

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN
It's too late to do much about Biafra, beyond urging mercy toward the victims and pouring in food and medical aid to save the starving and the wounded who have barely staggered through the most horrifying war of the Sixties. But it isn't too late to reappraise our own conduct in standing politely aside while two million Ibos died, mainly from starvation, because British and Soviet power politics had decided that Nigeria must be preserved as a single sovereign entity rather than become two countries.

What has happened is that we have watched once more while our own kind have been done in. The Ibos of Nigeria are the Christians and the enterprisers of their part of West Africa. They tried to secede and set up their own government when the Moslem Hausas massacred some twenty thousand Ibos in something that was pretty close to an attempt at tribal genocide. But, as had happened before in the Congo when we sided with the heterogeneous UN mob against Moise Tshombe, a good friend of the West who wanted to proclaim the independence of Katanga, we let the abstraction of national sovereignty come between us and our natural friends. The British were committed to the preservation of the Nigerian status quo, and our State Department is never willing to risk the displeasure of London when it comes to matters affecting the course of events in parts of the old British Empire.

If the big powers had kept out of the Biafran war, the Ibos might have made their independence stick. They weren't defeated until Russian-made artillery and Russian bombers and fighter planes, added to the steady flow of British weaponry, cracked the last Biafran defenses. It is perfectly true that if we had sent arms to Biafra it might have led to a confrontation with the Soviets (whom we are trying to bring to the point of accepting nuclear arms limitation), and to harsh words with Harold Wilson's Labor government in Britain.

But we might have really tried to do something through the United Nations. At one time Luis Kutner, a Chicago liberal lawyer, and Lee Edwards, the conservative Washington publicist, had an agreement worked out with four African nations, Gabon, the Ivory Coast, Tanzania and Zambia, to go to the UN with an application for Biafran membership. If Biafra had been accepted as a new sovereign state within the world body, the war in Nigeria would have automatically ceased to be a civil war, and the UN could have tried to do something to stop it. The Soviets would have vetoed anything positive, of course, but at least they would have been branded before the world as hypocrites when they come talking of peace.

The Kutner-Edwards proposition languished because no strong nation could be found to sponsor it. And the Ibos, in their extremity, were unable to mount a good propaganda campaign in the West for their cause. So the war dragged on for two-and-one-half years, to the end that was foreordained because of something that may have to do with British oil politics in West Africa and to the Soviet desire to get a sub-Saharan African foothold — and possibly a naval staging base to protect the ships they send around the Cape of Good Hope to the Indian Ocean and the port of Haiphong in North Vietnam.

The whole thing is a triumph for cynicism. The Soviets have actually had the gall to label the defeat of Biafra a "fiasco" for the western powers. Pravda, in Moscow, hailed the Nigerian victory as one that would help Nigerians to see "who is their enemy and who is a friend." The Soviet press accused British, Dutch and U.S. oil companies of encouraging Biafra, which is about as far from the truth as could possibly be imagined. The oil companies, while they kept quiet about things, had much more to gain in a material sense from a Nigerian victory that would restore order throughout the whole country, Biafra included. The real iniquity is that Britain, the Netherlands and the U.S. all combined to make a de facto united front with the Soviets in preferring a state of affairs in Nigeria that would keep the Ibos from the self-determination that Woodrow Wilson used to talk about so eloquently.

Well, the milk is spilled. We never did criticize the British. Maybe they will show some reciprocity now and stop lecturing us for Vietnam.

WASHINGTON MEMO

By Congressman
CHALMERS P. WYLIE
15th District of Ohio

On Jan. 19 the second session of the 91st Congress reconvened with many major issues still pending. Although the first session of the 91st Congress lasted for almost a full year, it did not finish action on major proposals pertaining to the following: Labor, Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriation Bill, which the President has threatened to veto; the Foreign Aid Bill, which is caught up in a Senate-House dispute over aid to Nationalist China; welfare reform, which is pending in the House Ways and Means Committee; revenue sharing; voting rights; electoral reform; the curbing of the distribution of obscene materials; cigarette advertising; postal reform; mass transportation; airport users' revenue; food stamps; water and air pollution; consumer protection; legislative reorganization; prayers in public buildings and schools, and the farm program.

We mentioned the problem of inflation in last week's column and the need for responsible action on the part of Congress. If this fight is to be won, then, too, we write about the crime problem and the urgent need for Congressional action here.

It is anticipated that many of the above subjects will be included in President Nixon's first State of the Union message to be delivered on Jan. 22.

Most political analysts termed the first session of the 91st Congress one of the least productive in history, although 21,553 measures were introduced in both houses on almost every conceivable subject. Artificial Hip Devices Yet To Gain Nod In U.S.

CHICAGO (AP) — Replacement of diseased hips with artificial devices has proved successful in Europe, but it's going to be a while before this becomes a routine operation in the United States.

The reason is that the cement to hold the devices in place has not yet been approved for this use by the Food and Drug Administration.

Restrictions are not so severe in Great Britain, where most of the work on artificial hips was done, and continental European countries. Thousands of these operations have been performed there over the past decade.

Two dozen U.S. research institutions have been granted permission to use the artificial hip requiring a special cement and several hundred hip replacements have been done in this country.

Dr. Mark B. Coventry, head of the department of orthopaedics at Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., said at a news conference Monday there is no indication as to when the fast-setting cement, called methylmethacrylate, will become generally available.

Dr. Coventry was moderator of a symposium on surgery and hip disease at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Orthopaedics.

He said he strongly approves the FDA restrictions, and called attention to past difficulties which have resulted from too early approval of drugs.

European surgeons have had no problems with the cement used in the hip surgery, Dr. Coventry said. The concern in the United States has been that the cement might degenerate and cause cancer, he said.

He pointed out that dentists have used this same cement in making tooth inlays for a number of years, and that it also has been used for skull repairs in brain surgery.

The most successful artificial hip disease at the annual meeting ball on a shaft is inserted into the thigh bone and cemented in place. This fits into a strong plastic socket which is attached by cement to the pelvis.

National Training Program Readied By Contractors

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz says a national training program of wide scope for a segment of the construction industry will be announced soon.

The Department of Labor is assisting "a national construction association and a major craft union in developing a national journeyman trainee contract," Shultz said Monday.

"This program will produce a major breakthrough in job opportunities in the construction industry, he told directors of the National Association of Home Builders.

During a press conference following the talk, Shultz refused to identify the construction association and major craft union involved in the program.

Shultz said he thought his department would release the information Sunday.

Bone-Chilling Cold Clings To Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bone-chilling cold clung to most of the nation from the Great Plains to New England today and drove temperatures below freezing across a large part of the South.

The second widespread outbreak of arctic weather in three weeks held temperatures below zero around the clock in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin.

The mercury failed to rise above -10 in many communities at midday Monday, then fell even lower after sundown.

Although some moderation occurred in the northern plains, readings of 20 below zero ranged all across the Dakotas and eastward into Michigan before daybreak. Readings in the minus teens penetrated south into central Indiana.

Williston, N.D., registered -25. It was -17 in Lafayette, Ind., -21 at Pellston, Mich., and -12 at Peoria, Ill.

The cold also extended over much of the interior northeast. Snow fell on the Central Plains and ranged eastward into Missouri. Freezing rain glazed scattered areas in the lower Mississippi Valley.

Wind and rain swept some coastal sections of the Pacific Northwest and turned to snow in the northern Rockies.

Among almost all people of the world, multiples of five or 10 have been employed to express quantity.

FDA Wants Stiffer Warning On 'The Pill'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has told doctors they should explain the risks of high blood pressure, liver damage, diabetes and cancer to women taking oral contraceptive pills even though the agency has no definite proof of any such link.

The FDA also announced Monday manufacturers will be required to strengthen the label warnings about a link between the pill and blood clots.

Meanwhile, the producers of a low-hormone "minipill" oral contraceptive announced it has halted testing with humans because the drug had produced tumors in dogs. The much-heralded pill has been tested up to two years on some 3,000 U.S. women and has been in use in France, Mexico and Britain.

Syntex Laboratories Inc. of Palo Alto, Calif., announced the decision, which comes as a blow to U.S. pill researchers. The firm said some tumors in the dogs were cancerous, some were precancerous and some benign. The firm said no cancer had been found in women taking part in the tests. It said tests will continue with dogs and monkeys.

The FDA, in suggesting fuller discussion with patients of the risks of oral contraceptive pills, sent letters to 381,000 physicians, hospital pharmacists and hospital administrators. The letter pointed to a recent British study that found clotting linked particularly to oral contraceptives with high estrogen content.

FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards said women should be made fully aware of the risks "thus permitting the participation of the patient in the assessment of the risk associated with this method" of oral contraception.

In strengthening the labeling regulation, the agency is acting on the findings of an FDA advisory committee which said a link between all oral contraceptives and certain blood clot disorders is now proven. Previously the labels were required only to mention that one study indicated a clot link.

National concern—and controversy—over the pill has snowballed since last week when senators began hearing testimony on possible dangers of the oral contraceptives.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, rejecting criticism that his hearings into birth control pills have created an unwarranted scare, said Monday his probe has spotlighted an "honest dispute" among medical men.

The hearings produced much testimony that the pill is suspected of causing or contributing to a wide variety of ailments, including cancer of the breast, cervix and uterus.

None of the expert medical witnesses reported any hard evidence against the pill, however.

The hearings resume for three days Wednesday and are expected to continue off and on for several months.

Nelson commented after a weekend survey by the Associated Press indicated two days of testimony on potential hazards of the pill last week before his monopoly subcommittee created a wave of alarmed calls by women to their doctors.

In strengthening the labeling regulation, the agency is acting on the findings of an FDA advisory committee which said a link between all oral contraceptives and certain blood clot disorders is now proven. Previously the labels were required only to mention that one study indicated a clot link.

National concern—and controversy—over the pill has snowballed since last week when senators began hearing testimony on possible dangers of the oral contraceptives.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, rejecting criticism that his hearings into birth control pills have created an unwarranted scare, said Monday his probe has spotlighted an "honest dispute" among medical men.

The hearings produced much testimony that the pill is suspected of causing or contributing to a wide variety of ailments, including cancer of the breast, cervix and uterus.

None of the expert medical witnesses reported any hard evidence against the pill, however.

The hearings resume for three days Wednesday and are expected to continue off and on for several months.

Nelson commented after a weekend survey by the Associated Press indicated two days of testimony on potential hazards of the pill last week before his monopoly subcommittee created a wave of alarmed calls by women to their doctors.

It said tests will continue with dogs and monkeys.

The FDA, in suggesting fuller discussion with patients of the risks of oral contraceptive pills, sent letters to 381,000 physicians, hospital pharmacists and hospital administrators. The letter pointed to a recent British study that found clotting linked particularly to oral contraceptives with high estrogen content.

FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards said women should be made fully aware of the risks "thus permitting the participation of the patient in the assessment of the risk associated with this method" of oral contraception.

Man Given Life, Other Is Freed In Cincy Slaying

CINCINNATI (AP) — One man faces a life sentence and another is free after their trials Monday in the slaying of a downtown parking garage attendant during a robbery Jan. 3, 1969.

A jury in the Hamilton County Common Pleas Court of Judge Robert Wood deliberated four hours before convicting Michael Maggard, 19, of Dayton, Ky., of first-degree murder. It recommended mercy, making a life imprisonment sentence mandatory.

Earlier, Judge Frank Gusweiler ordered a directed verdict of acquittal for Paul Johnson 26, also of Dayton, Ky., on grounds of insufficient evidence. He was also charged with first-degree murder.

Harry Danford, 65, of Covington, Ky., was the slaying victim.

Artificial Hip Devices Yet To Gain Nod In U.S.

CHICAGO (AP) — Replacement of diseased hips with artificial devices has proved successful in Europe, but it's going to be a while before this becomes a routine operation in the United States.

The reason is that the cement to hold the devices in place has not yet been approved for this use by the Food and Drug Administration.

Restrictions are not so severe in Great Britain, where most of the work on artificial hips was done, and continental European countries. Thousands of these operations have been performed there over the past decade.

Two dozen U.S. research institutions have been granted permission to use the artificial hip requiring a special cement and several hundred hip replacements have been done in this country.

Dr. Mark B. Coventry, head of the department of orthopaedics at Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., said at a news conference Monday there is no indication as to when the fast-setting cement, called methylmethacrylate, will become generally available.

Dr. Coventry was moderator of a symposium on surgery and hip disease at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Orthopaedics.

He said he strongly approves the FDA restrictions, and called attention to past difficulties which have resulted from too early approval of drugs.

European surgeons have had no problems with the cement used in the hip surgery, Dr. Coventry said. The concern in the United States has been that the cement might degenerate and cause cancer, he said.

He pointed out that dentists have used this same cement in making tooth inlays for a number of years, and that it also has been used for skull repairs in brain surgery.

The most successful artificial hip disease at the annual meeting ball on a shaft is inserted into the thigh bone and cemented in place. This fits into a strong plastic socket which is attached by cement to the pelvis.

National Training Program Readied By Contractors

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Secretary of Labor, George P. Shultz says a national training program of wide scope for a segment of the construction industry will be announced soon.

The Department of Labor is assisting "a national construction association and a major craft union in developing a national journeyman trainee contract," Shultz said Monday.

"This program will produce a major breakthrough" in job opportunities in the construction industry, he told directors of the National Association of Home Builders.

During a press conference following the talk, Shultz refused to identify the construction association and major craft union involved in the program.

Shultz said he thought his department would release the information Sunday.

FDA Wants Stiffer Warning On 'The Pill'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has told doctors they should explain the risks of high blood pressure, liver damage, diabetes and cancer to women taking oral contraceptive pills even though the agency has no definite proof of any such link.

The FDA also announced Monday manufacturers will be required to strengthen the label warnings about a link between the pill and blood clots.

Meanwhile, the producers of a low-hormone "minipill" oral contraceptive announced it has halted testing with humans because the drug had produced tumors in dogs. The much-heralded pill has been tested up to two years on some 3,000 U.S. women and has been in use in France, Mexico and Britain.

Bone-Chilling Cold Clings To Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bone-chilling cold clung to most of the nation from the Great Plains to New England today and drove temperatures below freezing across a large part of the South.

The second widespread outbreak of arctic weather in three weeks held temperatures below zero around the clock in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin.

The mercury failed to rise above -10 in many communities at midday Monday, then fell even lower after sundown.

Although some moderation occurred in the northern plains, readings of 20 below zero ranged all across the Dakotas and eastward into Michigan before daybreak. Readings in the minus teens penetrated south into central Indiana.

Williston, N.D., registered -25. It was -17 in Lafayette, Ind., -21 at Pellston, Mich., and -12 at Peoria, Ill.

The cold also extended over much of the interior northeast.

Snow fell on the Central Plains and ranged eastward into Missouri. Freezing rain glazed scattered areas in the lower Mississippi Valley.

Wind and rain swept some coastal sections of the Pacific Northwest and turned to snow in the northern Rockies.

Among almost all people of the world, multiples of five or 10 have been employed to express quantity.

BFG Customer-Minded Retread Tire Guarantee

Any passenger retread tire, when used in a normal passenger car service, is guaranteed throughout the life of the original tread against failure due to defective workmanship and materials, and against failure caused by road hazards, which in our opinion, render the tire unserviceable.

This guarantee does not apply to retreads with repairable punctures, tires irregularly worn, tires damaged by running flat, fire, wrecks, collisions, chain cuts or obstructions on the automobile, nor does it apply to tires when used on vehicles other than a passenger automobile or a passenger automobile being used for commercial purposes.

Any qualified retread which fails due to an adjustable condition and is presented to a BFG store, or authorized dealer, for replacement, by its owner, shall be adjusted promptly and in the same manner as a new tire, according to tread wear and computed on current exchange price for the same size and type passenger tire retread.

'The Land Of The Book' Presented At Monday Club

A paper entitled "The Land of the Book", was presented by Mrs. John Beck at the Jan. 12 meeting of the Monday Club in the Pickaway County Historical Society's meeting room.

Mrs. William Cox presided at the meeting and named Miss Elizabeth Tolbert, Mrs. Frank Morrison and Mrs. Martin Cromley as nominating committee for 1969-70.

Informative excerpts of the paper presented are here noted: "It took Europe sixteen hundred years after the decline of Greece to realize that Jewish literature, science and architecture had their roots in Grecian civilization. It may take another few hundred years to establish that the spiritual, moral, ethical and ideological roots of Western civilization are embedded in Judaism. The furniture in the Western World is Grecian, but the house in which Western man dwells is Jewish."

The Jews, unlike other civilizations, managed to escape the cultural death of each civilization within which they dwelled.

Their 4000 year survival on four continents and in six major civilizations began with Abraham, 2,000 years before the birth of Christ. He went to Canaan, the name then given to Palestine, with his family, his followers, and his flocks. He and his son Isaac and his grandson Jacob prospered and grew strong in the new country. Jacob's name was changed to Israel and the Jewish people became known as the children of Israel.

Joseph led the famine stricken Hebrews from Canaan to Egypt. The Jews who remained behind are still known as Hebrews and they kept their freedom; their brothers in Egypt were enslaved.

Moses, the liberator of the Jews from bondage in Egypt, is the greatest, yet the most paradoxical figure in Jewish History. Though Moses is to Judaism what Jesus is to Christianity, the Jews have built no holidays around events in his life as the Christians have with the life of Jesus. The Gospels are based on the sayings of Jesus, but there is not a single quotable quote in the five Books of Moses which can be attributed to Moses.

The exodus from Egypt had been led by Moses, the return to Canaan, the Promised Land, was led by his successor, Joshua. With the settlement of Canaan, the Jews ceased being a nomadic people, and the Shoftim, or Judges, were born. They were thought of as divinely inspired men, accountable to God by God. They established the first democracy in the world, 400 years before the Greeks.

The system had one fatal weakness. It did not provide the basis for a strong centralized leadership. The Jews met this challenge by establishing a constitutional monarchy. The first Jewish dynasty came into existence, around 1000 B.C. and was the first of its kind in the world.

During his first thousand years, the mask of the Jew was that of a nomad and a tiller of the soil, living by his wits, preferring peace, and taking to the sword only when forced to do so. In the second 1000 years of his history the nomadic mask was discarded. He became a man of war, intrepid in battle, unmatched in valor.

The Prophets in Jewish history were concerned with preserving the purity of the Jewish religion, which led to the idea that the Jews, who were the chosen people of God, must set an example for the rest of mankind.

Negro Air Force General Named To Cleveland Post

4 Slayings Are Probed In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Police are investigating four weekend slayings on Cleveland's East Side, including the beating death of a 71-year-old East Cleveland woman who apparently was sexually molested by her attacker.

Katherine Kendall was found dying on a stairway landing at the Superior Avenue Rapid Transit station about 8 a.m. Sunday. Rapid Transit passengers called police with reports of seeing a man molesting the woman.

East Cleveland detectives said the description of the attacker was similar to that of a man caught in attacks on two teenage girls in Cleveland Heights in November.

Cleveland police reported the bodies of an unidentified man and a woman identified as Marie Hammonds, 35, were found Sunday morning within a few blocks of each other on the East Side. Both were partially undressed.

The woman was found in the back seat of a car on East 118th Street and the man in a rear yard near East 123rd Street and Superior Avenue. Both had been shot in the head.

Another slaying victim in the same general area was Hobie Moody, 43, whose body was found in a pool of blood in the basement of his home on East 123rd Street. Police were holding Moody's wife, Grace, 38, for questioning.

Babe Is Born After Long Trip Aboard Train

CHICAGO (AP) — It was the old story of the baby born in the back of a taxicab, but with a new twist.

Sherry Avila, 26, of Chicago was on a train from Peoria, returning from a baby shower, when the pains began. A Rock Island Lines trainman told the startled husband, Frank, 31, "We told her to get off at La Salle, and at Peru and at Joliet, but she wanted to be with you."

Avila rushed his wife off the train and into Erwin Hollbeck's cab. When the cab pulled up in front of Wesley Memorial Hospital, three passengers got out, including a healthy 4-pound, 5½-ounce boy.

Mayor Carl B. Stokes, a Negro, announced Saturday that Davis had been appointed safety director and that he would retire from the service Feb. 1 to take the $24,400-a-year post. He succeeds Joseph F. McManamon, who resigned last month.

In announcing the appointment, Mayor Stokes said his new safety director will have "full authority to do whatever is necessary to stop the alarming increase in crime in this community."

The three-star general said Sunday that he was taking the job as head of the Cleveland police and fire departments with the hope of making "my old hometown... a better place for all its citizens."

Davis, 57, was born in Washington, D.C., and lived in Cleveland while his father served as senior Army instructor for the Ohio National Guard after a year at Western Reserve University, he entered West Point and was graduated 35th in a class of 276 in 1936.

Brody Says He Has Cure For Cancer

NEW YORK (AP) — Basking in the spotlight of international attention, margarine heir Michael J. Brody Jr. has escalated his promises of good works to come.

Brody solemnly revealed his plan Sunday to end the war in Vietnam and said he would disclose a cure for cancer.

He also told a nationwide television audience that his fortune has grown from $25 million to $100 billion and he will give it away if people will only give him some peace and quiet.

Brody, 21, capped a whirlwind weekend by playing guitar and singing on the Ed Sullivan Show after he flew back from a few hours in Puerto Rico.

After the show he held a news conference on stage.

"I have cures for all diseases," the long-haired Brody said. "I have a cure for cancer... I will give $10 billion in aid to North Vietnam to retreat from the South. If they do this I will give them $20 billion more in aid and go over there and personally help them build their country."

Amid the claims, his banker in Scarsdale, N.Y., where Brody lives, said the young man didn't have enough funds in that particular account to cover a $1,000 check.

NEW YORK (AP) — It was Lawrence Welk night on "Here's Lucy." While Welk, the smiling orchestra leader, may very well be the least likely candidate for comedy guest star, somehow it worked out very nicely.

That was largely because the plot was as old and familiar as the series itself, which goes back two decades. And because Lucille Ball and Vivian Vance in combination can perform miracles.

On Monday night there was Lucy, currently the TV mother of two teen-agers, getting into her weekly mess because old friend Viv has arrived for a visit, largely to meet Welk. Lucy has bragged that she knew him.

Vivian is conveniently so nearsighted without glasses she can't tell the real Welk from a wax museum dummy. But the real Welk turns up unexpectedly and everyone winds up dancing the polka.

That outline certainly sounds dreary, but somehow Lucille Ball's ability and Lawrence Welk's ingenuous delight at being an actor communicated themselves pleasantly.

Meanwhile, the real Lucille and her co-stars—Lucie Arnaz, 18, and Desi Jr. who just turned 17—were on an annual business-and-pleasure visit in New York. The two Arnaz children will work in an NBC "Music Hall" show with their father. Lucille is in town on behalf of the Easter seal campaign, plugging the National Society for Crippled Children's crusade for child safety in the home.

After a couple of jam-packed days, including Monday night's Merv Griffin show appearance and interviews scheduled every hour on the hour, she is off for rounds of similar chores in Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago.

After the Eastern visit, the family will pack into Snow Mass, near Aspen, for a couple of weeks of skiing.

The visit is not all plugging a cause and a holiday. There will also be some business talk with CBS: after 20 years, her exclusivity clause with the network is coming to an end. No great crisis, for Lucille Ball is a very valuable property and "Here's Lucy" is one of the quiet success stories of the season.

When "Laugh-In" on NBC first arrived, "Here's Lucy" suffered a drop-off of audiences. This season, with "Laugh-In" losing a bit of its novelty and steam, "Here's Lucy" has returned to the top of the Nielsen list, bobbing regularly between fourth and 14th position in the top 20 shows.

Next season, the Ball show will continue to shoot many episodes on location. "We're thinking of Hawaii, Alaska and other places in the United States," she said. "It gets us out of the studio, and the viewers seem to enjoy the change of scenery."

Recommended tonight: "My Sweet Charlie," NBC, 9-11 EST, film feature with Patty Duke; "60 Minutes," CBS, 10-11, crime in Washington and the grave-stone business among other features.

Hal March, Noted Emcee, Dies At 49

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hal March, the actor who found fame as master of ceremonies of the television quiz show "64,000 Question" in the 1950s, is dead at 49.

March succumbed to pneumonia Monday at the University of California Medical Center. Last November, in the same hospital, surgeons had removed his right lung because of cancer.

He returned to work in December as host of an NBC-TV daytime game show, "It's Your Bet."

But shortly before New Year's he contracted pneumonia.

A spokesman said the actor was too weak, with only one remaining lung, to fight off the infection.

He had given up smoking in August 1968, when he was using about two packs a day. He resumed the habit last August.

Before his assignment on the "64,000 Question" program, he was known mainly as an adept, hard-working supporting actor, but never a star.

March was quizmaster for three years but left the show in 1957. Two years later a scandal broke when it became known that some contestants were being coached in advance. March was never linked with the coaching.

Change Of Venue Granted For Trial

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A change of venue was granted Monday in Common Pleas Court here for two men charged in the Nov. 8 slaying of Clarence Squire Jr. The new location for the trial was not immediately determined.

Squire was shot to death while trying to aid a woman being beaten in the downtown area. Ross Fields, 21, and Robert Liggins, 18, both of Toledo, were charged with murder in the penetration of a robbery.

The first practical internal-combustion engine using gasoline for fuel was produced in France in 1860.

He is a former leader of the Vice Lords, one of Chicago's largest street gangs.

Last Cancer Radium Unit Dismantled At Hospital

NEW YORK (AP) — In a silent drama played out in the basement of Memorial Hospital, four radiation experts in yellow safety clothes and air masks cut away two glass flasks containing intensely dangerous radium.

The delicate procedure marked the end of an era in American medicine, begun in 1917 when Dr. James Douglas, a physician and metallurgist whose daughter died of cancer, donated a fraction of an ounce of radium to the hospital.

Radium was the first radioactive weapon against cancer and with the gift from Dr. Douglas, Memorial Hospital built the first radon plant in this country to produce radioactive material to treat patients.

But now radium has largely outlived its usefulness because there are better, safer radioactive materials to attack cancer cells. So Memorial Hospital decided to close down its plant, now the last one remaining in a private institution in the United States.

In the years since 1917, perhaps 10,000 cancer patients were treated with a radium by-product.

uct at Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases.

The radium, a naturally occurring element, was kept in solution in the flasks, behind lead shielding in a special room. As the radium slowly decays—it would take 1,620 years for half of it to decay—it produces radon gas.

Minute amounts of the gas are trapped in tiny gold capsules called "seeds." The seeds are inserted into a patient's cancer cells for a few days at a time, in hopes that the radiation might halt, reverse or kill the cells.

"Cutting the glass was the part I was concerned about," Dr. John Laughlin, chairman of the medical physics department, said after the operation was a success. "It's possible that the glass would be so brittle from the radiation that the whole thing would splinter."

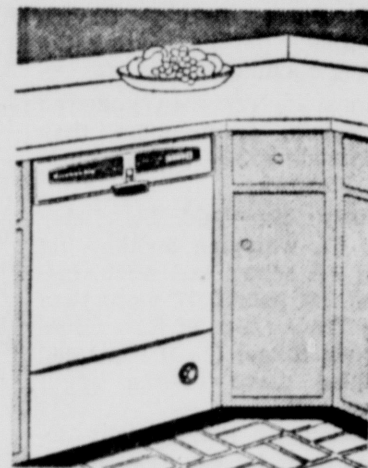

It didn't, although the radiation specialists were slightly contaminated, on their hair and the outside of their protective clothing, by alpha particles. The contamination was minor and washed away, Dr. Laughlin said.

Negro Air Force General Named To Cleveland Post

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Air Force Lt. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis Jr., who will become Cleveland's safety director Feb. 1, says the city's crime problems stem from living conditions in the inner city.

Gen. Davis, the highest ranking Negro in U.S. military history, talked of his new job in an interview Sunday at MacDill Air Force Base, Tampa, Fla., where he is the second highest official.

Mayor Carl B. Stokes, a Negro, announced Saturday that Davis had been appointed safety director and that he would retire from the service Feb. 1 to take the $24,400-a-year post. He succeeds Joseph F. McManamon, who resigned last month.

In announcing the appointment, Mayor Stokes said his new safety director will have "full authority to do whatever is necessary to stop the alarming increase in crime in this community."

The three-star general said Sunday that he was taking the job as head of the Cleveland police and fire departments with the hope of making "my old hometown... a better place for all its citizens."

Davis, 57, was born in Washington, D.C., and lived in Cleveland while his father served as senior Army instructor for the Ohio National Guard. After a year at Western Reserve University, he entered West Point and was graduated 35th in a class of 276 in 1936.

"The heart of Cleveland's crime problems are the living conditions in the center of the city," he said. "These fundamental causes must be eliminated before there can be drastic improvements."

"Cleveland's problems are similar to problems of all large cities, especially where the young commit major crimes after learning to depend on narcotics."

Saying that the difficulties "won't be corrected in five minutes," Davis explained that he planned to make mostly administrative changes and "would rather wait before making a complete outline of my ideas."

Fire Chief William E. Barry said the appointment "should be a good thing for both departments... It will probably help to have a military man."

Police Chief Patrick L. Gerity sent Davis a telegram of congratulations Sunday and said he "looks like a pretty good man. The department looks forward to his coming here."

There have been rumors that Stokes plans to replace Gerity, but the mayor refused to comment on that matter in making the announcement of Davis' appointment.

4 Slayings Are Probed In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Police are investigating four weekend slayings on Cleveland's East Side, including the beating death of a 71-year-old East Cleveland woman who apparently was sexually molested by her attacker.

Katherina Kendall was found dying on a stairway landing at the Superior Avenue Rapid Transit station about 8 a.m. Sunday. Rapid Transit passengers called police with reports of seeing a man molesting the woman.

East Cleveland detectives said the description of the attacker was similar to that of a man caught in attacks on two teenage girls in Cleveland Heights in November.

Cleveland police reported the bodies of an unidentified man and a woman identified as Marie Hammonds, 35, were found Sunday morning within a few blocks of each other on the East Side. Both were partially undressed.

The woman was found in the back seat of a car on East 118th Street and the man in a rear yard near East 123rd Street and Superior Avenue. Both had been shot in the head.

Another slaying victim in the same general area was Hobie Moody, 43, whose body was found in a pool of blood in the basement of his home on East 123rd Street. Police were holding Moody's wife, Grace, 38, for questioning.

Babe Is Born After Long Trip Aboard Train

CHICAGO (AP) — It was the old story of the baby born in the back of a taxicab, but with a new twist.

Sherry Avila, 26, of Chicago was on a train from Peoria, returning from a baby shower, when the pains began. A Rock Island Lines trainman told the startled husband, Frank, 31, "We told her to get off at La Salle, and at Peru and at Joliet, but she wanted to be with you."

Avila rushed his wife off the train and into Erwin Hollbeck's cab. When the cab pulled up in front of Wesley Memorial Hospital, three passengers got out, including a healthy 4-pound, 5 1/2-ounce boy.

Brody Says He Has Cure For Cancer

NEW YORK (AP) — Basking in the spotlight of international attention, margarine heir Michael J. Brody Jr. has escalated his promises of good works to come.

Brody solemnly revealed his plan Sunday to end the war in Vietnam and said he would disclose a cure for cancer.

He also told a nationwide television audience that his fortune has grown from $25 million to $100 billion and he will give it away if people will only give him some peace and quiet.

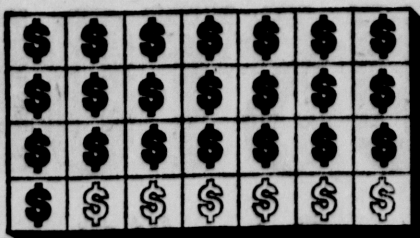

Brody, 21, capped a whirlwind weekend by playing guitar and singing on the Ed Sullivan Show after he flew back from a few hours in Puerto Rico.

After the show he held a news conference on stage.

"I have cures for all diseases," the long-haired Brody said. "I have a cure for cancer... I will give $10 billion in aid to North Vietnam to retreat from the South. If they do this I will give them $20 billion more in aid and go over there and personally help them build their country."

Amid the claims, his banker in Scarsdale, N.Y., where Brody lives, said the young man didn't have enough funds in that particular account to cover a $1,000 check.

Zanesville And Mansfield St. Peter Lead Cage Poll

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Zanesville, surging up from second place, took over the Class AA lead and Mansfield St. Peter maintained its wide margin in Class A today in The Associated Press' weekly Ohio high school basketball ratings.

Columbus Mohawk (10-0), which led Zanesville by three points last week, tumbled to third place behind Dayton Chaminade despite beating Columbus Eastmoor 80-73.

Zanesville (13-0) gathered 204 points, seven more than Chaminade (13-0) and 41 more than Mohawk.

Classy Mansfield St. Peter (15-0), whipping another big Class AA school last week, collected 242 points, 77 more than Zane Trace (13-0) of Ross County. New Riegel (13-0) remained in third place in the small school poll.

Zanesville's magnificent defense, fired by 6-6 Eric Jones, had another big week, limiting Marietta to 41 points and Columbus Northland to 30 in easy triumphs.

The Blue Devils whacked Northland 61-30, one more point than Mohawk beat its fellow Columbus City Leaguer earlier in the season.

Chaminade polished off Dayton Meadowdale 66-41 Friday and Kettering Alter 65-41 Sunday to remain in step with the other two main Class AA challengers.

The top 10 stayed the same in Class AA, with Zanesville and Steubenville (11-0) vaulting from 10th to eighth place, making the big moves. Hamilton Garfield (10-2) fell one spot to ninth.

Newark (11-1), Toledo Macomber (12-0) and Dayton Roth (11-0) retained their fifth, sixth and seventh spots while Ashland (10-0) dropped a peg to 10th.

St. Henry (13-0) continued its climb in Class A, moving up from sixth to fifth ahead of Sandusky St. Mary (11-1). Wynford (10-1) and Coldwater (12-2) stayed in seventh and eighth.

The only new faces in either class, Ridgedale (11-1) took over ninth and Licking Valley (11-2) 10th in Class A. They replace Versailles and Granville, both beaten last week.

OSU Defense Beats Mountaineers

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer
West Virginia University's zone defense baffled Ohio State in the first half, but it was a Buckeye man-for-man defense that proved the difference between the neighboring basketball rivals Monday night.

"I kept expecting them to go to it at anytime," West Virginia Coach Sonny Moran said after the Buckeyes switched into a man-to-man in the second half and sped away to an 84-70 victory.

"I really thought we might play the whole game in a zone defense," admitted Ohio State Coach Fred Taylor. "But we needed to put heat on (Skip Kintz and Wil) Robinson."

Robinson and Kintz, firing at long range, kept the Mountaineers close in the first half and West Virginia was even 35-35 at halftime.

Moran admitted experience was a big factor in an Ohio State spurt in which the Buckeyes outscored the Mountaineers 18-2 for a 53-41 lead.

"Four of our top seven have little experience," Moran said. "Four of Ohio State's starters went to the NCAA finals two years ago as sophomores."

Jody Finney scored 19 of his 30 game-high points in the first half, mainly from the corner. Jim Clemons fired the second half spurt, scoring 16 of his 24 points, while Dave Sorenson added 20 more for Ohio State.

Robinson, who had 16 in the first half, settled for 22 points. Kintz led the Mountaineers, now

6-7 to Ohio State's 11-2 for the season, with 24 points.

The West Virginia zone did limit Ohio State, which had been making 54.8 per cent of its floor shots, to a 51.5 per cent night. The Mounties, outrebounded 50-41, shot 38 per cent.

Elsewhere Monday night, Dayton routed Detroit 89-68, with all five Flyer starters scoring in double figures for the first time this season, including sophomore guards Pat Muren with 16 — a career high — Al Bertke with 11 in his first start.

The Flyers hit 52 per cent from the floor to jump to a 14-8 lead early in the game. George Janky, who ended the night with 21 points, accounted for 10 of the first 14 points. George Jackson added 18 points and 18 rebounds.

Dayton mounted a 42-28 half-time lead and went ahead by as much as 15 in the second half on the way to its ninth victory in 13 starts. Detroit fell to 4-12.

In other games, Brothers Charlie (23) and Larry (16) Claggett combined for 41 points as Denison edged Ohio Conference rival Marietta, 73-71; Gary Holbrook scored 32 points and grabbed 23 rebounds to lead Cedarville past Walsh, 90-72; Ohio Northern never trailed as it dropped Defiance, 97-82; and Bill Johnson tallied 29 points to lead fourth-ranked small college Youngstown past Cleveland State, 78-68.

High-flying Rio Grande took No. 14, nipping Oakland City, Ind., 110-108.

schools are divided into Class AA and A, with schools having 201 boys in the upper three grades or 251 in the upper four grades in the larger classification.

"The schools have indicated their choice," Meyer said. "We'll try to give them the best possible tournaments we can." Under the new setup next September, schools with 369 or more boys will be in Class AAA, 163 to 368 boys in Class AA and 162 or fewer boys in Class A. All figures are based on the upper three grades.

New three-class sports will be football, cross country, basketball, baseball, track and golf. Wrestling will have two classes, with Class AA and A lumped together.

One-classification sports only will be swimming, tennis and gymnastics, Meyer said.

The 1971 state basketball tournament will be played on a Friday and Saturday at two sites, one being Columbus. Meyer would not disclose the second location, but Class AAA would be in Columbus.

"It also means we will need four more regional sites for basketball," Meyer said.

A five-man committee counted the ballots for the Ohio High School Athletic Association Monday.

Pacers Beat Kentucky In ABA Tilt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indiana's Roger Brown hit a 17-foot jumper with one second to go to give the Eastern Division-leading Pacers a 108-106 win over Kentucky in the only American Basketball Association game played Monday night.

Kentucky's Louie Dampier had canned a 23-foot three-point goal to tie the score with 21 seconds remaining.

The outcome ruined a Colonel fivepoint uprising in the last 37 seconds on Sam Smith's goal, followed by a Kentucky steal, followed by Dampier's heroics.

The Pacers stalled for the final shot.

The win was Indiana's fifth over Kentucky in six meetings, leaving the Pacers with a 34-8 mark. Kentucky is second in the same division with a 27-18 record.

Balanced scoring proved the ultimate difference, as six Pacers hit in double figures, Mel Daniels hit 22 and Bob Netolicky 21 to lead Indiana.

Dampier's 29 points, including five three-pointers, led Kentucky. Jim Ligon added 23 points for the Colonels.

There were no NBA games scheduled Monday night.

On the committee were Robert Holland from the Ohio Department of Education, Upper Arlington Principal A. L. Guessman, Columbus Whetstone Principal Don Harper, Worthington Athletic Director Richard Termeer and Mark Whitaker of Columbus Brookhaven, president of the state high school track coaches.

Winter Hike Arranged For Hocking Hills

The fifth annual Winter Hike along the Buckeye Trail will be held Saturday at Hocking Hills State Park at 10 a.m.

For relief from the winter doldrums, renewing of old friendships, or to see the rare beauty of an Ohio woodland winter, Fred E. Morr, Director of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, invites all Ohioans to join in this traditional outing.

Sponsored by the Department's Division of Parks and Recreation and the Buckeye Trail Association the five-mile hike will originate at Old Man's Cave.

The hike, along snow covered, hemlock-lined gorges, will lead groups to a warm fire and lunch break — bring your own — at the picnic area at Cedar Falls where water is also available.

Destination is Ash Cave, Ohio's largest rock shelter where hot coffee will be served compliments of the Logan Trade Club.

Hikers will be formed in groups as they arrive and leave immediately under the leadership of an experienced guide, who will answer questions and point out interesting features along the trail.

Arrangements have been made to have buses on hand to shuttle participants back to their cars. Everyone should be off the trail and headed for home by 5 p.m.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Oscar Robertson, Chet Walker and many other National Basketball Association players are anxiously watching Curt Flood's suit against baseball's reserve clause, hoping the vibrations carry over to pro basketball.

"I'm certainly behind him," said Robertson, one of the NBA's greatest stars and president of the Players' Association. "I think there should be some kind of reserve clause, but that it should be modified."

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The current battle by baseball player Curt Flood against baseball's reserve clause, if successful, will be good for all professional athletes, says the executive director of the National Hockey League Player's Association.

Alan Eagleson of Toronto, also a lawyer for many professional athletes, told a news conference Monday that NHL players would also like to see modifications in hockey's reserve clause.

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — The Ontario 500 has joined the list of major annual auto races following agreement on a five-year contract between the National Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing and Ontario Motor Speedway.

"The Ontario race will become a traditional event on our calendar, following the Daytona 500 by two weeks every year," NASCAR President William H.G. France Sr. said Monday as he and David B. Lockton, president of OMS, Inc., announced the pact.

PACERS BEAT KENTUCKY IN ABA TILT

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Indiana's Roger Brown hit a 17-foot jumper with one second to go to give the Eastern Division-leading Pacers a 108-106 win over Kentucky in the only American Basketball Association game played Monday night.

Kentucky's Louie Dampier had canned a 23-foot three-point goal to tie the score with 21 seconds remaining.

The outcome ruined a Colonel fivepoint uprising in the last 37 seconds on Sam Smith's goal, followed by a Kentucky steal, followed by Dampier's heroics.

The Pacers stalled for the final shot.

The win was Indiana's fifth over Kentucky in six meetings, leaving the Pacers with a 34-8 mark. Kentucky is second in the same division with a 27-18 record.

NBA Again Turns Down Merger With Lesser ABA

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pete Maravich and all those other hot shot college seniors got a reprieve Monday when the National Basketball Association once again turned down merger feelers by the American Basketball Association. But don't spend the money yet, Pete.

The NBA owners are scheduled to continue today their pre-All Star game expansion discussion involving the addition of two teams, but certain to be in the back of their minds is the still very real possibility of the merger.

It takes four no votes from the 14 owners to nix expansion and at least three clubs—New York, Philadelphia and Chicago—are already on record as preferring a union with the three-year old ABA rather than expansion.

But while Cleveland, Houston, Buffalo and Portland, Ore., stood by with hopes of still becoming two NBA expansion cities for 1970-71, NBA President Walter Kennedy rejected an ABA peace offering in a new conference after the owners had met fruitlessly most of Monday.

Jack Dolph, commissioner of the ABA, had sent a telegram to Kennedy and the owners saying that the ABA had complied with certain conditions put down by the NBA before the NBA would consider a merger, and requested a meeting with Kennedy and the owners.

"I know the conditions have not been met," Kennedy, suffering from laryngitis, replied through administrative assistant Carl Scheer.

He referred to the apparent disposition of a multi-million dollar antitrust suit filed by the ABA against the NBA and the situation of an ABA franchise in Washington, which the NBA believes infringes on Baltimore's territorial rights.

"When they send me a letter outlining how they have filled the conditions, then we will talk.

Right now, we won't discuss the telegram. There is nothing to discuss." Kennedy added that no discussion on a common draft between the two leagues is contemplated at this time.

"I think we can survive a bidding war," he stated.

As for expansion, he said no vote had as yet been taken among the owners, but "we plan to have some decision at these meetings," he said. "We have not exhausted everything that needs to be discussed regarding expansion."

What the owners did do was award the 1973 All-Star game to Chicago, announce the 1970 playoff money would be the $3 million expansion fee per club to join the NBA.

How Weather Looks Today

OHIO WEATHER SUMMARY
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Official Weather Bureau summary for Ohio:

Nearly windless conditions early today made the bitter cold morning temperatures a little more tolerable.

Coldest readings again were reported in northwest Ohio — from near zero to 10 below zero. Cloudiness over much of the state, where readings ranged from zero to 10 above, kept temperatures from falling quite so low.

Cold readings were expected to continue through Wednesday night with highs Wednesday ranging from around 10 above to near 20 degrees above zero. Lows tonight were forecast to range from around zero to 10 below in the northwest and from 5 below to 10 above zero over the remainder of the state.

Some slight warming was indicated in the forecasts for Thursday.

Some light snow was falling over some sections of extreme southern Ohio early today but accumulations amounted to less than one inch. There was a chance of snow flurries — associated with a weak weather system moving into the state from the west — beginning in western Ohio this afternoon and reaching eastern Ohio by evening. Accumulations were expected to only amount to an inch or less in most sections.

The only snow flurries on Wednesday were forecast in the northeast portion of the state.

FORECASTS
OHIO — Mostly cloudy with a chance of snow flurries and cold again tonight. Lows 5 above zero to 10 below north and near zero to 10 above south. Partly cloudy and cold Wednesday with a chance of snow flurries northeast.

NORTHWEST INLAND & WEST LAKE SHORE OHIO — A chance of snow flurries this afternoon and tonight. Lows tonight zero to 10 below. Wednesday partly cloudy and cold. Highs around 10.

NBA All-Star Lineup Shows East Favored

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — With the most important 14 feet of the West squad looking on from sidelines and a hospital bed, the East ruled a solid favorite in tonight's National Basketball Association All-Star game.

But East Coach Red Holzman doesn't think the West will be using its injuries as a crutch and give in easily.

"Sometimes having a handicap is not a handicap," he said with the sagacity he has used to coach the New York Knicks to a runaway start in the NBA's Eastern Division. What he meant was an underdog sometimes plays even harder.

The East, which has a 13-6 edge in the All-Star games and has won six of the last seven, is given its advantage at center where the Knicks' Willis Reed, relieved over X-rays that showed Monday he has no ulcer, and Milwaukee's Lew Alcindor reside.

They will be going up against Elvin Hayes of San Diego and Bob Rule of Seattle who will be present because 7-foot-1 Wilt Chamberlain of Los Angeles and 6-11 Nate Thurmond of San Francisco won't be playing.

Chamberlain, pro basketball's greatest scorer, will be on the sidelines with a mending knee injury and Thurmond will be in a San Francisco hospital following knee surgery.

Along with Reed in the East's lineup is Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati, who is 8-1 in All-Star games and has been named the most valuable player three times. Then there is Billy Cunningham of Philadelphia, the league's second leading scorer, ball-hawking Walt Frazier of the Knicks, and John Havlicek of Boston.

Robertson, along with the West's Elgin Baylor of Los Angeles, needs only 16 points to break Bob Pettit's record of 224 points.

Prisoners Ill From Hepatitis At Youngstown

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—The maximum-security prison section of the Mahoning County jail is under quarantine while doctors await the results of tests on two prisoners found to be ill from hepatitis.

The two were sent to South Side Hospital and the other 39 inmates of the maximum-security range were given gamma-globulin shots to build up their resistance in case the hepatitis is the infectious strain.

Fifteen deputies and jailers also were inoculated.

Dr. Raymond Catoline, jail physician, said it would be several days before it is known whether the prisoners have infectious hepatitis.

Wednesday variable cloudiness and cold, highs 10-15.

SOUTHWEST & SOUTHEAST OHIO—Considerable cloudiness and cold tonight. A chance of snow flurries. Lows near zero to 10 above. Wednesday partly cloudy and cold. Highs 15-20.

Portsmouth Supermarket In Trouble

CINCINNATI (AP) — U. S. District Court Judge Timothy S. Hogan ordered Monday afternoon that the Schaefer Supermarket of Portsmouth be given 30 days in which to file a more formal plan of reorganization.

A group of unsecured creditors filed involuntary bankruptcy proceedings against the firm last month.

They charged the chain with having debts of $1,778,379 and assets of $750,000, including real estate.

That petition sought a court order for an immediate corporate reorganization. Judge Hogan denied that petition for the time being, pending further investigation.

He referred the case to federal referee in bankruptcy Raymond J. Pellman for consideration of the latest reorganization proposal.

"Let's all take a look at Chapter 11 first and see what happens," Judge Hogan said.

Howard Harsha of Portsmouth, attorney for the bankruptcy petitioners, told the court "there is a need for new management" and that the firm's property had been overvalued.

"There is definite evidence of mismanagement," he said.

Negro Is Given Food Franchise By Big Chain

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Charles E. Johnson will take over Wednesday as the first Negro owner of a franchise to operate a McDonald's Systems, Inc., restaurant on Cleveland's East Side.

Johnson formed Cam, Inc., last May to buy the franchise at 14235 Kinsman Road from Richard Schubot, of R&B, Inc.

He said he had been negotiating with McDonald's before the controversy over black ownership erupted last year.

The five McDonald's restaurants in Negro areas on the East Side were boycotted and picketed last summer by Operation Black Unity, a coalition of 14 civil rights groups, which demanded black ownership of McDonald's franchises in the black community.

The Circleville Herald, Tues. Jan. 20, 1970 9 Air Quality Standards Eyed By Pollution Control Board

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Air Pollution Control Board had hearings scheduled today on air quality standards but the flood of testimony anticipated may have little effect on the state's thinking on the matter.

George H. Eagle, chief engineer for the Ohio Department of Health, told newsmen Monday serious consideration was being given to adopting for eight northeast Ohio counties standards which call for dust and soot particles to be held to an annual mean of 75 micrograms in a 24-hour period, and sulphur dioxide held to a mean of 57 micrograms per cubic meter of air.

Citizens groups working for pollution control have proposed tougher standards with a mean for particles set at 60 micrograms and a top limit of 180 micrograms for sulphur dioxide.

The state is proposing that the standards be met by Jan. 1, 1975, but clear air groups want the deadline cut to Jan. 1, 1972.

Among those lined up to testify were Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, and Howard M. Metzgerbaum, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate.

Vanik took to the hearing a plan for setting air pollution standards on an industry-by-industry basis, with each required to invest a certain amount of money for pollution control.

Metzgerbaum charged in his prepared statement that the federal government was spending too little money on pollution control.

"I believe," he said, "the federal government can easily find a billion dollars to trim from the military and space budgets for use in the war on the frighteningly high level of air pollution. The real question is can we afford not to make this kind of commitment?"

Saxbe Seeks Crime Funds

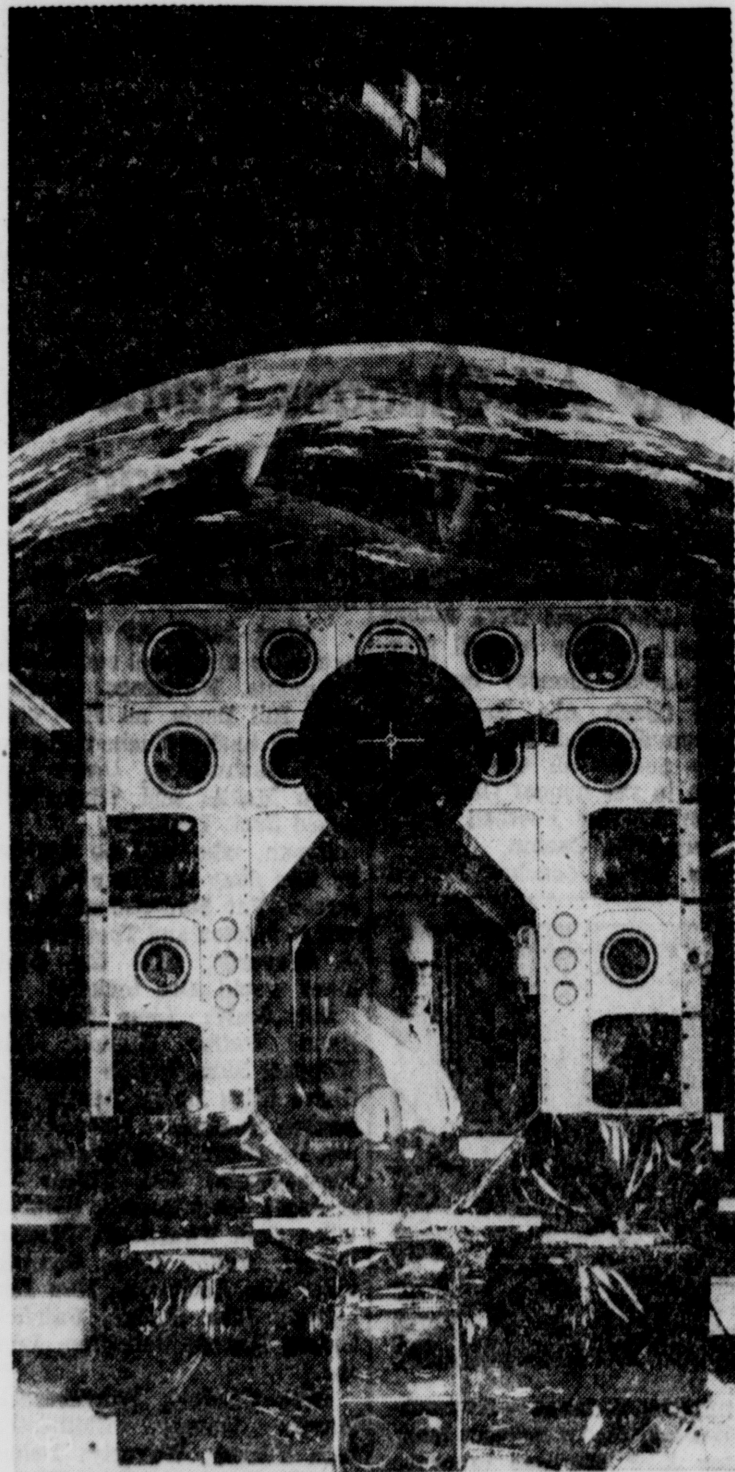

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, said Monday the Nixon administration and Congress have not given the fight against organized crime and lawlessness in the streets sufficient priority.

Saxbe said he would introduce an $8 billion anticrime package aimed at court reform and increased local police forces through federal aid.

"We don't spend money at the local level. We don't improve the courts and correctional institutions," he said. "On a federal level, we've left it up to the paper shufflers and egghead planners."

Saxbe, a former Ohio attorney general, said the federal funds would be channeled through state governments to city and county governments, giving the states a major role in crime-fighting efforts. The amount of aid he proposes would double the current funds available.

He said the federal government should help with the costs of reorganizing courts to give criminal cases top priority, of improving jails and prisons and should help with up to half the cost of police salaries.

LONDON (AP) — William James Owen, the 68-year-old member of Parliament accused of spying, was again denied bail Monday and ordered held for other hearing on Jan. 27.

BACK ON TOP—Lenny Dawson, quarterback of the Kansas City Chiefs, the Super Bowl kings, and his wife ham it up a bit in New York where he received a new car as the Most Valuable Player in the game, played in New Orleans—only a week after their world almost came crashing down on them following a report he had been subpoenaed in connection with a federal grand jury investigation of gambling.

Georgia Defeats Auburn, 71-67, In SEC Triumph

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
There's something about a Southeastern Conference opponent that makes tigers out of the Georgia Bulldogs.

Auburn was the latest team to find out that the Bulldogs' SEC bite is worse than their non-league bark.

Georgia came away with a hard-fought 71-67 triumph and moved past the Plainsmen into second place with a 5-1 mark while Auburn dropped to third at 52.

Georgia trails Kentucky, which has a 5-0 league record, by one-half game.

Elsewhere, the Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech blew a 17 point lead and were stung by Clemson 88-78, Butch Zatezalo paced the winners with 20 points while Rich Yunkus had 24 for Tech.

Jody Finney poured in 30 points, Jim Clemons 24 and Dave Sorenson 20 as Ohio State defeated West Virginia 84-70. An 18-burst in the second half wrapped up the Buckeye's 11th win in 13 starts.

Dayton put all five starters in double figures for the first time this season and the Flyers whipped Detroit 89-68. George Janky was high man with 21 points.

Army, the nation's top defensive team, held Fairleigh Dickinson to two field goals and 11 points in the second half and posted a 44-38 victory.

Colorado rolled to an 85-67 Big Eight decision over Iowa State, La Salle topped New Orleans, Loyola 85-79, Western Kentucky beat Murray State 85-75 and Utah State tripped Portland 95-83.

The 56-year-old Scheffing at first turned down feelers from M. Donald Grant, chairman of the board, shortly after Murphy died Wednesday night from a massive heart attack. He changed his mind and was accepted unanimously at a board meeting Monday morning.

Hockey Players Rap Reserve Clause

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Scheffing, a baseball man since 1935 as a catcher, manager, coach and talent scout, has shouldered the pressure job of succeeding the late John Murphy as general manager and vice-president of the world champion New York Mets.

The 56-year-old Scheffing at first turned down feelers from M. Donald Grant, chairman of the board, shortly after Murphy died Wednesday night from a massive heart attack. He changed his mind and was accepted unanimously at a board meeting Monday morning.

Georgia Defeats Auburn, 71-67, in SEC Triumph

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
There's something about a Southeastern Conference opponent that makes tigers out of the Georgia Bulldogs.

Auburn was the latest team to find out that the Bulldogs' SEC bite is worse than their non-league bark.

Georgia came away with a hard-fought 71-67 triumph and moved past the Plainsmen into second place with a 5-1 mark while Auburn dropped to third at 52. Against non-SEC competition, Georgia is just the reverse with a 1-5 record.

Trailing 46-45, Lanny Taylor's clutch shooting and Herb White's ballhandling sparked the Bulldogs to a nine-point lead with six minutes left. Taylor scored 22 points and Bob Lennard 21 while John Mengelt of Auburn led all scorers with 29.

Georgia trails Kentucky, which has a 5-0 league record, by one-half game.

Elsewhere, the Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech blew a 17-point lead and were stung by Clemson 88-78. Butch Zatezalo paced the winners with 20 points while Rich Yunkus had 24 for Tech.

Jody Finney poured in 30 points, Jim Clemons 24 and Dave Sorenson 20 as Ohio State defeated West Virginia 84-70. An 18-burst in the second half wrapped up the Buckeye's 11th win in 13 starts.

Dayton put all five starters in double figures for the first time this season and the Flyers whipped Detroit 89-68. George Tanky was high man with 21 points.
Army, the nation's top defensive team, held Fairleigh Dickinson to two field goals and 11 points in the second half and posted a 44-38 victory.
Colorado rolled to an 85-67 Big Eight decision over Iowa State. La Salle topped New Orleans, 104-79, Western Kentucky beat Murray State 85-75 and Utah State tripped Portland 85-83.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Scheffing, a baseball man since 1935 as a catcher, manager, coach and talent scout, has shouldered the pressure job of succeeding the late John Murphy as general manager and vice-president of the world champion New York Mets.

The 55-year-old Scheffing at first turned down feelers from M. Donald Grant, chairman of the board, shortly after Murphy died Wednesday night from a massive heart attack. He changed his mind and was accepted unanimously at a board meeting Monday morning.

FTC Says Food Specials Often Not As Advertised

WASHINGTON (AP) — When a housewife goes to market she often finds the food specials cost more than advertised or may not be there at all, the Federal Trade Commission says.

The FTC investigation last summer of 137 stores belonging to 10 food chains in San Francisco and Washington showed a "total of 11 per cent of the advertised items in the two cities were found to be unavailable, and only eight of the 137 stores checked had every advertised item available."

The findings were released as the FTC opened hearings today on an proposed commission rule to require food markets to specifically state in their advertising what stores have the bargains, and that specials go at the advertised price or below.

Supporters of the rule and consumer groups were scheduled for the early part of the hearings. The chains and their trade associations will appear in a March session.

The FTC report further said the shortage of bargains was more acute in low-income or ghetto areas.

On pricing, the FTC found 8 to 9 per cent of the items mis-priced compared to the ads, and:

"In a very substantial majority of the instances of deviations, the prices marked on the items were higher than the advertised prices."

Armco Sets Price Hike

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — The Armco Steel Corp. announced price increases of $4 to $6 a ton for carbon steel sheets.

Effective Feb. 1, Armco said the prices of hot rolled sheets will be boosted $4 a ton; cold rolled and enameled sheets $5 a ton and zinc aluminum and tern coated sheets $6 a ton.

The steel company said the increases would partially offset increased costs encountered in a new theoretical weight pricing system as well as recent increases in the costs of raw materials and services. It said the increases "will merely restore effective prices to customers using this (theoretical weight pricing) system to levels previously realized under the old scale weight system."

Armco said it has an "acute awareness" of the problem of inflation but added it believes the steel industry has done the best job of any basic materials industry in fighting inflation during the last 10 years.

It said that in the 1960-69 period finished steel prices have risen 11 per cent as compared with the 23 per cent increase in the cost-of-living index and a 44 per cent increase in building costs.

Schools Shut Down For Lack Of Water

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—Schools in the nearby Alexander Local School District, closed all of December for lack of operating funds, were shut down again Monday—this time for a lack of water.

Two of the district's four schools—the high school and an elementary school—were shut down because this city just south of Athens had frozen water mains. Water service was expected to return when temperatures moderate.

Washington and Baltimore markets of nine chains turned up similar findings, the FTC said.

If the rule is adopted violators would be liable for legal action with the court determining the penalty.

The FTC said it would not allow general disclaimers in the new advertising such as "Not all items available at all stores."

It was noted by the commission that families could benefit by genuine food specials to the tune of 10 per cent off their total food bills.

Official sources have said that the enemy command is trying to position war materials on potential battlefields so it can launch an offensive during or after the Tet celebration if it chooses to do so.

Allied forces found five such enemy war stockpiles Monday, three of them in the Saigon region and two others south of Da Nang. They yielded nearly three tons of ammunition and weapons.

Five Americans from the 4th Infantry Division's 1st Brigade were killed and five were wounded in a five-hour fight in the Central Highlands 270 miles northeast of Saigon. Enemy losses were not known, a U.S. spokesman said.

The U.S. Command also reported that four Vietnamese children were killed and 11 children and four U.S. Marines were wounded Monday when a terrorist threw three grenades into a school and an adjoining yard in a hamlet nine miles south of Da Nang. The terrorist escaped.

North Vietnam charged today that 285,000 South Vietnamese have been "contaminated" and more than 24 million acres of fields and orchards destroyed by U.S. toxic chemicals, gases, napalm and phosphorus bombs.

It said the Nixon administration had intensified the use of these. Hanoi's Vietnam News Agency charged that an allied sweep through Quang Nam Province last Nov. 11-16 killed 700 Vietnamese civilians, destroyed crops, and burned 1,000 houses.

U.S. And Red China Resume Talks After 2-Year Lapse

WARSAW (AP) — Envoys of the United States and Communist China resumed the only formal contact between their governments today after a lapse of two years.

U.S. Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel Jr. arrived at the Chinese Embassy in midtown Warsaw to confer with Charge d'Affaires Lei Yang. Each was accompanied by three aides.

Stoessel arrived in his limousine two minutes after the scheduled 2 p.m. starting time. He was accompanied by Paul H. Kreisberg and Donald M. Anderson, State Department China experts, and Thomas W. Simons, an embassy political officer.

In the Nationalist Chinese capital of Taipei, the China News, an English language paper, declared that the talks "can be regarded as an American exercise in opportunism."

The paper said Peking "wants nothing less" from the talks than U.S. withdrawal from the western Pacific and an end to American opposition to Red Chinese membership in the United Nations.

Stoessel proposed resumption of the ambassadorial talks last month when he ran into two Chinese diplomats at a Yugoslav fashion show in Warsaw. The Nixon administration also slightly eased trade and travel restrictions pertaining to Red China.

U.S. officials in Washington say they expect slow progress in the talks and will not be surprised if there is no movement at all for some months.

However, they said the speed and businesslike manner in which the Chinese responded to the U.S. overtures for discussions was a good sign. Three officials believe Peking's border quarrel with the Soviet Union is causing the Chinese leaders to reassess their hostile attitude toward the United States.

Russian diplomats in various foreign capital have reportedly expressed displeasure at the renewal of the talks. But Secretary of State William P. Rogers has emphasized that the United States is seeking better relations with both the Soviet Union and Communist China and has no intention of trying to exploit the feud between them.

As it did during the first 13 years of periodic meetings, the United States is expected to propose such small, practical steps as re-establishing direct communication link between the two countries, exchanging such specialists as public health workers, medical researchers and journalists; and clearing some trade channels

Nixon May Seek Broader Interior Department Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several senators say President Nixon may seek a new name and role for the Interior Department as the chief depository for the nation's environment and natural resources protection programs.

The motive would be more centralized direction of the fight against pollution and destruction of natural resources, the senators, both Republicans and Democrats, said.

But some Senate critics of the administration suggested the Nixon proposals may only be dramatic window dressing to attract favorable public attention without the spending of the billions of dollars they say are needed to cleanse the nation's polluted air and water.

Consultants working for the Public Land Law Review Commission issued a report last week including a proposal to create a new Department of Natural Resources that would enlarge the duties of the Interior Department.

This would include the transfer of the Forest Service, currently a part of the Agriculture Department, to the new Department of Natural Resources.

Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, said he got clear indications of a revamping of the Interior Department in recent conversations with Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel and other ranking administration officials.

He said both the White House and the department had asked him for copies of his bill which ment.

would convert the Interior Department into a Department of Natural Resources and Environment. The Moss bill would call for a complete transfer of environmental and resources activities into the department and the removal of such responsibilities as jurisdiction over Indians and the territories.

Republican Leader Hugh Scott, confirmed a Cabinet-level department is being considered.

But he said no final decision has been made and said the President might decide to create a commission or lesser agency.

Scott did say Nixon's proposals would go much further than those proposed in Congress last year.

Summit County Home Is Closed

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The Summit County Home, labeled a fire trap by recent grand juries and a special citizens' study committee, is being closed because of fears for the safety of the 203 patients.

County commissioners personally broke the news to the patients and the 120 employees at the home Monday afternoon.

County Administrator Gerald S. McFadden said all patients will be transferred to about 30 private nursing homes in the Akron area within a week to 10 days.

Rubber Bands Being Used As Anchors

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — What's 35 feet long, one inch in diameter, made of rubber and holds a weather buoy in place?

Right. The world's biggest rubber band—or, more correctly, four of them—anchoring the floating Pacific Missile Range weather station 10 miles northwest of Santa Barbara Island.

Oceanographic engineer Fred Roehler of PMR's Geophysics Division toyed with several ideas before the right one snapped into place.

"The buoy had a tendency to rotate when moored," Roehler said, "but the rubber bands under strong tension were a restoring force." They stretch 700 feet to the ocean floor.

Roehler isn't concerned about the prospect of the rubber bands snapping. "It's air and sunlight that deteriorate rubber," not salt water, he said.

FTC Says Food Specials Often Not As Advertised

WASHINGTON (AP) — When a housewife goes to market she often finds the food specials cost more than advertised or may not be there at all, the Federal Trade Commission says.

The FTC investigation last summer of 137 stores belonging to 10 food chains in San Francisco and Washington showed a "total of 11 per cent of the advertised items in the two cities were found to be unavailable, and only eight of the 137 stores checked had every advertised item available."

The findings were released as the FTC opened hearings today on an proposed commission rule to require food markets to specifically state in their advertising what stores have the bargains, and that specials go at the advertised price or below.

Supporters of the rule and consumer groups were scheduled for the early part of the hearings. The chains and their trade associations will appear in a March session.

The FTC report further said the shortage of bargains was more acute in low-income or ghetto areas.

On pricing, the FTC found 8 to 9 per cent of the items mis-

priced compared to the ads, and:

"In a very substantial majority of the instances of deviations, the prices marked on the items were higher than the advertised prices."

An additional study of 154

Washington and Baltimore markets of nine chains turned up similar findings, the FTC said.

If the rule is adopted, violators would be liable for legal action with the court determining the penalty.

The FTC said it would not allow general disclaimers in the new advertising such as "Not all items available at all stores."

It was noted by the commission that families could benefit by genuine food specials to the tune of 10 per cent off their total food bills.

The steel company said the increases would partially offset increased costs encountered in a new theoretical weight pricing system as well as recent increases in the costs of raw materials and services. It said the increases "will merely restore effective prices to customers using this (theoretical weight pricing) system to levels previously realized under the old scale weight system."

Armco said it has an "acute awareness" of the problem of inflation but added it believes the steel industry has done the best job of any basic materials industry in fighting inflation during the last 10 years.

It said that in the 1960-69 period finished steel prices have risen 11 per cent as compared with the 23 per cent increase in the cost-of-living index and a 44 per cent increase in building costs.

Schools Shut Down For Lack Of Water

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—Schools in the nearby Alexander Local School District, closed all of December for lack of operating funds, were shut down again Monday—this time for a lack of water.

Two of the district's four schools—the high school and an elementary school—were shut down because this city just south of Athens had frozen water mains. Water service was expected to return when temperatures moderate.

U.S. And Red China Resume Talks After 2-Year Lapse

WARSAW (AP) — Envoys of the United States and Communist China resumed the only formal contact between their governments today after a lapse of two years.

U.S. Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel Jr. arrived at the Chinese Embassy in midtown Warsaw to confer with Charge d'Affaires Lei Yang. Each was accompanied by three aides.

Stoessel arrived in his limousine two minutes after the scheduled 2 p.m. starting time. He was accompanied by Paul H. Kreisberg and Donald M. Anderson, State Department China experts, and Thomas W. Simons, an embassy political officer.

In the Nationalist Chinese capital of Taipei, the China News, an English language paper, declared that the talks "can be regarded as an American exercise in opportunism."

The paper said Peking "wants nothing less" from the talks than U.S. withdrawal from the western Pacific and an end to American opposition to Red Chinese membership in the United Nations.

Stoessel proposed resumption of the ambassadorial talks last month when he ran into two Chinese diplomats at a Yugoslav fashion show in Warsaw. The Nixon administration also slightly eased trade and travel restrictions pertaining to Red China.

U.S. officials in Washington say they expect slow progress in the talks and will not be surprised if there is no movement at all for some months. However, they said the speed and businesslike manner in which the Chinese responded to the U.S. overtures for discussions was a good sign. Three officials believe Peking's border quarrel with the Soviet Union is causing the Chinese leaders to reassess their hostile attitude toward the United States.

Russian diplomats in various foreign capitals have reportedly expressed displeasure at the renewal of the talks. But Secretary of State William P. Rogers has emphasized that the United States is seeking better relations with both the Soviet Union and Communist China and has no intention of trying to exploit the feud between them.

As it did during the first 13 years of periodic meetings, the United States is expected to propose such small, practical steps as re-establishing direct communication link between the two countries, exchanging such specialists as public health workers, medical researchers and journalists; and clearing some trade channels

Jaycee Santa Project Has Been Successful Since Start In 1961

This year the Jaycee Santa Claus Project was again successful.

The project was broken down by General Chairman Dr. Robert Liggett into three areas of responsibility.

Jake Bailey was chairman of business solicitations. Tom Howell was chairman of the painting and rebuilding program. Arch Ward was in charge of the parade.

Sixty-eight local businesses contributed toward the budget of $734. Jaycee solicitors were Bob Seranton, Bob Sines, Dick Bircher, Terry Sloan, Larry Lewis and Jack Mader.

Under Tom Howell's direction the house was given a fresh coat of paint, a new chimney was built, new skirts for the house were built and the carpet was cleaned.

The Jaycee Wives decorated the inside of the Santa House.

The parade consisted of eleven beautiful floats, five local marching bands, a Cub Scout pack, a fire truck, and the most important ingredient of all — Santa Claus. Parade Master was Larry Priest.

After the parade a record 900 children visited Santa. Before Old Saint Nick closed his door on Christmas Eve, 5,900 children had visited with him.

The parade is held each year on the day after Thanksgiving, and after the parade Santa's House is open six days a week until Christmas.

This project was started in 1961 and for the first three years Santa was stationed in a rented building in downtown Circleville. In 1964 the present Santa House had its beginnings.

Many local companies donated materials at cost and with Jaycee labor the house was built.

The figures below show the growth of this project by the number of children who visited Santa each year:

1961, 2,600; 1962, 3,000; 1963, 3,500; 1964, 4,300; 1965, 5,100; 1966, 5,400; 1967, 5,600; 1968, 5,800; 1969 5,900.

Little Miss Pumpkin Show Sponsored By Jaycees

By LARRY LEWIS

The Circleville Jaycees have annually sponsored the Little Miss Pumpkin Show since 1952. There were 90 candidates then compared to 115 in 1969.

Each school in the county sponsors a first grader for the contest. Businesses and companies in the county also have the privilege of sponsoring a candidate.

All contestants receive banners for entering the contest. The winner and the two alternates receive banners and trophies. The three finalists also participate in all other Pumpkin Show parades.

The Jaycees have two television or radio personalities to judge the contest. The Jaycee state president is always the third judge. Their job is always a hard one and not relished by anyone.

Little Miss Pumpkin Show 1969 is Carla Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest C. Russell. Her attendants are Nadine Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Martin, and Michelle McPherson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McPherson.

The Jaycees are proud to sponsor this contest and each year do their best to serve the contestants and sponsors. The contest not only gives the younger set the joy and excitement of riding in a parade, but may help to teach them competition for this competitive world we live in.

MISSISSIPPI'S Gov. John Bell Williams calls on a joint session of the legislature in Jackson for support of both private and public schools to preserve quality education as the state wrestles with massive integration.

Dr. Liggett Is Senate Member

Dr. Robert Liggett was named to the Junior Chamber International (JCI) as a life time member.

DR. ROBERT LIGGETT

Dr. Liggett joined the Circleville Jaycees in 1963 and after six devoted years to the organization in many capacities he was named and is Circleville's only JCI senator in 25 years of the local chapter history.

Immediately upon joining, Dr. Liggett became very active, chairing many projects and starting a program that would and did take the Circleville Chapter to become one of the outstanding organizations in the state and nation.

Offices he has held locally include treasurer, director, president and state director. He has done an outstanding job in all positions he has held.

On the state and national level he was elected to the office of district vice president. There are 23 district voice presidents in the state of Ohio.

At the end of his year as a vice president, he was chosen one of six outstanding district vice presidents in the state of Ohio.

This past year he has been elected to chair another large state and national level program. Dr. Liggett and his wife Jo, have two children. They reside on East Union Street.

Telethon Collects Over $1,000

The Circleville Jaycees participated in the Jerry Lewis Telethon for Muscular Dystrophy, Aug. 31 and Sept. 1. Local Jaycees received pledges in the amount of $1,034.54.

Working in shifts at the Jaycee Clubrooms were: Ernie Lindsey, Emory Brady, Ronnie Miller, Asa Elsea, Bill Ballou, Linda Ballou, Mike Alkire, Dick Bircher, Bruce Bell, Larry Lewis, Dr. H. H. Shuttleworth, and the project chairman Bob Sines.

District Veep Has Challenging, Rewarding Job

By DR. ROBERT LIGGETT
District 10 Vice President,
Ohio Jaycees

The job of a Vice President of a District is a challenging and rewarding experience.

The State of Ohio is divided into nine regions and these regions are subdivided into 25 districts. Within these districts are 265 chapters.

District Ten is the largest geographical district in Ohio. It consists of 12 Chapters: Chillicothe, Chillicothe Correctional Institute, Circleville, Gallipolis, Greenfield, Hillsboro, Ironton, Jackson, Portsmouth, Washington C. H., Waverly and Wellston.

One of the administrative and programming links between the district and state level is the district vice president.

The district vice president is the leader of a district and represents his chapters on the executive committee of the Ohio Jaycees where all policies, new programs and activities are voted on.

He is responsible for communications, growth, chapter development and extensions within the district. He officially visits each local three times during the year and holds five district wide meetings. In May at the Spring District, the new district vice president is elected.

The job of District 10 vice president has led me on a 9,500 mile trip while attending 110

Jaycee meetings. Fifteen newsletters were written of about 40 copies each. Sixty-five single letters of correspondence about Jaycee business were written.

An impact program to rate chapters throughout the state creates a spirit of competition.

Asa Elsea, last year's Circleville Jaycee president, made my job of motivation easier since the Circleville Jaycees led the impact program all year. When your own local has met a goal, it is much easier to convince others that they, too, can meet their goals. Circleville won the Outstanding Chapter in District 10 Award.

The district grew from 11 to 12 chapters last year by the extension of a chapter into the Chillicothe Correctional Institute. This new program to permit inmates to participate in community service while still in prison may prove to be one of the most important tools in returning inmates to society as worthwhile citizens.

The district membership grew from 499 to 601 Jaycees. The district as a whole ranked high in the parade of districts. This was true because each chapter put forth outstanding effort to improve itself. Ten of the 12 chapters received the National Blue Chip Chapter recognition for their excellence.

We had 60 golfers from Circleville, Ashville, Bucyrus, Worthington, Beverly, Columbus, Greenfield.

There were three flights, A, B, C in the tournament. The tournament started at 6:30 a.m. and ended at 5 p.m. There was a free lunch for the golfers. It was prepared by Jaycee Wives.

The tournament is in memory of Omar Wayne Cox who died during World War II. Past winners include Garner Cox, a member of Landsdowne Golf Links, and Edward Cox, both brothers of Omar Cox.

This year's winner was Ron Leatherwood, a very fine golfer and young man. He shot a 73. This was the second year in a row Ron has won the tournament.

I would like to thank all the people who played in the tournament and invite them back for this year's event.

In closing, I would like to thank my fellow Jaycees, Asa Elsea, Tom Elsea, Wayne Hatfield, Jerry Leist, Ernie Lindsey, Robert Scranton and Archie Ward.

Youthful Approach Is JC Asset

The broad purposes of the Jaycees, along with its distinctive 21-36 year age limitations, have led to the development of the bold approach to service.

As young men, Jaycees occasionally make mistakes and attempt more than they can finish. More often than not however, they surprise the older leaders of other civic clubs by actually doing what these groups are reluctant to try.

More and more Jaycee chapters are coming to understand that the courage of youth is one of the greatest assets. The reason so many Jaycee chapters embark upon controversial projects, ones which other organizations pass by, is because "Jaycees would rather rock the boat than miss it!"

Jaycees do anything -- and everything! At one time or another, somewhere in America, Jaycees have probably done everything imaginable and possible for their communities.

All their work is important, too, whether it is helping one boy find the right road to a useful life or helping a whole state get the most benefit out of tax dollars and mental hospitals. Big chapters or just a few members, large cities and small towns, Jaycees fulfill the needs of their communities. Their only limits are their ideas.

Jaycee chapters have added calculable parks and recreation facilities to their communities, conducted polio immunization clinics, also, many of them recording such impressive results as more than 90 per cent of the citizens immunized.

Jaycees were great ones for assisting worthy charities too.

Break From Tradition Proves Profitable Move

By MICHAEL ALKIRE

The decision had to be made whether to make doughnuts in the booth which, was the tradition for the last four years, or buy the donuts from Lindsey's Bakery and keep them warm in an oven in the booth.

There were other things to be considered also, first more room in the booth, to allow us to sell more food products than in the past.

With the ease of buying the doughnuts and the extra room which enabled us to sell more food products the decision was made to break from tradition.

Since the decision was made there had to be a lot of work done in the remodeling of the booth. First we had to consider how to remodel the inside of the booth to fit our needs. First the booth was cleared of all the old tables and shelves.

Then new serving tables and shelves were built, however, the shelves and tables were built smaller in width to give us more room. During all the remodeling consideration had to be given to keep the booth within the regulations of the health department.

Due to this fact we put in a new inlaid linoleum floor and a white ceiling. Which made the booth more attractive and cleaner. Also the booth needed a new roof and it was repainted both inside and out.

So thanks to Ron Miller and his donation of both time and material we put on a new composition shingle roof. Thanks to efforts of Bob Sines and Bill Ballou we put in a new floor.

After all this was completed a hot water heater and sink was put into the booth. We also added an oven, to keep the doughnuts warm and a refrigerator to keep other foods cold. After all this work was completed the booth was ready for the Pumpkin Show.

However the hard work did not stop there. The Pumpkin Show working schedule had to be made, workers had to get T.B. tests and the booth had to be stocked with food products. But thanks to the Jaycees working at the booth it was made a success. The booth doubled its profit's in the first year, and for the first time in four years we had real Pumpkin Doughnuts. So it proves that a break from tradition, sometimes, can be a profitable venture.

Internal Awards Of Club Given Throughout Year

The internal awards given to Jaycees for outstanding contribution to the organization are as follows: Jaycee of the Quarter, Director of the Quarter, Jaycee of the Year, Key man award, spoke award, sparkplug award and speak-up award.

The Jaycee of the Quarter is selected through an accumulation of points which any Jaycee member has the opportunity of compiling. It is given four times every year, once each quarter. These points are compiled by attending meetings, working on projects, participation in local governmental affairs, bringing new members into the organization; and filing reports on projects which have been chairmen or committee men.

The Jaycee of The Year is based on the above program with the exception it is given only once each year to the Jaycee with the greatest total point accumulation.

Director of the Quarter is an award given four times a year to the local director who has led his team to the greatest number of points. Each director is responsible for a certain number of members, seeing that they know when the meetings are, and what projects are being worked on. Then his individual team members points are added, along with his own and the director with the greatest total point accumulation wins the award.

Director of the Year is an award given once each year to the director who has compiled the greatest number of points through the above program.

Key man award is the presentation of an award to a local member for outstanding contribution as a Jaycee to his community, club and self. It is chosen exclusively by the President.

The spoke award is an award given to a freshman Jaycee who has accumulated 100 points or more by accomplishing certain duties as a new member. Some of the objects are bringing a new member, chairing projects, working on projects, attending local governmental affairs and giving oral reports to the club.

This award can be won by every Jaycee in his first year of active service. After his first full year he then is eligible for the sparkplug award.

The sparkplug award is based on the same duties as the spoke; and a Jaycee can win this award every year until he is ineligible to be a member.

The speak-up award is given to the Jaycee member who participates in a five minute speak-up speech before the organization on any subject of his choice. The best speaker is selected each year out of those who have given speeches and is sent to the district contest.

The Circleville Jaycees are proud of these awards and the contribution which they make to our community leaders. We feel it is an ever ending challenge to create and build a better community for a better tomorrow.

Dear Editor:

We in Circleville are fortunate that we live in a city which has much to offer now, yet continues to try to improve upon its past. One of the leaders of these improvements is the Circleville Jaycees.

Being a member in good standing of a community entails more than just living in it. A member in good standing is one who not only cares about his community but also is willing to work for its continued betterment. The Jaycees have met this challenge and have overcome it.

There are four branches of the Jaycee structure. The first being the international organization, the United States Jaycees the second and the state organization, third. The most important and the one which makes the other three possible — the local organization.

We will now attempt to present a short outline of the local organization. The organization is operated by a Board of Directors. It has a president, an internal vice president, and external vice president, a secretary and treasurer.

The internal vice president is placed in charge of all the committees which have to do with the internal structure of the organization, which in our local covers Chapter Management, Ways and Means and Socials. These three areas are each headed up by a director.

The external vice president is placed in direct charge of all committees which have to do with community, state and U.S. Jaycee projects. In our local the office is broken down into two portfolios, Youth and Sport and Community Development of which each has a director.

The secretary takes accurate minutes of each meeting and the treasurer works with preparing the annual budget, collecting dues and paying bills.

We also have a liaison between the state organization and the local who is elected by the Board of Directors. All matters relating to amendments for he by-laws and policies are decided by the membership at large.

There are many other fields of activity in which Jaycees take part other than those mentioned here. These are some of the principal ones and the program which your local Jaycees have adopted.

Jaycees Are City's Most Active Group

By ERNIE LINDSEY
President, Circleville Jaycees

I, as president of the Circleville Jaycees, the town's most active young men's organization, am very proud of the fact and take the responsibility very seriously.

ERNIE LINDSEY

I feel that this group is the greatest bunch of guys in the world and are deserving of a responsible leader.

I have been a Jaycee for about three years and in that time I have seen numerous young men come into the club and become responsible young men and very active in community affairs. The first and foremost obligation of the Jaycees is to teach their members leadership training. And the way we do this is through community development.

We as Jaycees are somewhat of a selfish organization. We use the community to train young men to be leaders. I am certain the community will benefit. But we are Jaycees, who are receiving this leadership training, will benefit more.

In the past year, the Jaycees have been involved in such projects as the Airport Fund Drive. I am most happy to say the Jaycees were largely responsible for the collection of over $50,000 to build the airport. We also sponsored Little Miss Pumpkin Show, the Halloween Parade, the Santa Parade and Santa House and the manned phones in Circleville for Jerry Lewis' Telethon on Muscular Dystrophy, Junior Champ, teenage rodeo and many others. We have some 50 projects in all. Last year we were asked to run some 140 projects. But of course, because of the time element, we couldn't possibly handle all of them.

Of course, to run these projects, we need money and so we have our ways and means projects such as the Pumpkin Show Booth and Christmas Tree selling program, fair booth and DSA Banquet.

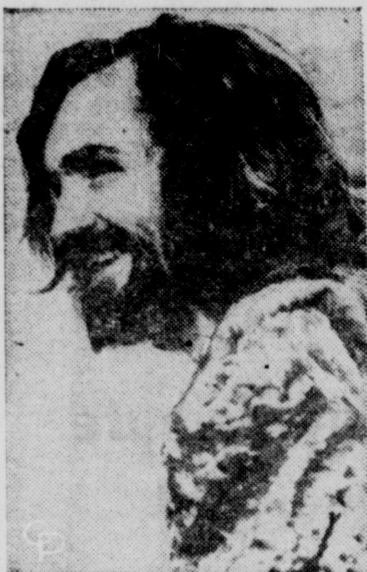

One thing I feel I must mention is the speak-up program which I feel is probably the most important thing the Jaycee program has. It teaches the Jaycees to speak before large groups of audiences with confidence and ease, which is just one of the traits of a leader.

To those of you who might be reading this article and may be interested in joining, I would like to say that the Jaycees are not by any means all work. We have our socials which have been averaging about one or two a month. We have the summer picnic, stag picnic, Halloween Party, Christmas Party, New Year's Eve party and numerous other get togethers. So if you are between the ages of 21 and 35 and of good character, let me or any other Jaycee know that you are interested and we'll see you get an application.

We also have a Jaycee Wives organization under the leadership of Chris Bailey. I just couldn't say enough for their terrific job. Every Jaycee wife is automatically a member.

I'd like to take this opportunity to thank all my officers and directors and members for all the support they have given me throughout the year. You're the greatest and I'm proud of each and every one of you.

That is about all I have to say to you, the community, except I can promise you that because of the Jaycees Circleville will have some terrific leaders in the years to come.

Jaycees Are City's Most Active Group

By ERNIE LINDSEY
President, Circleville Jaycees
I, as president of the Circleville Jaycees, the town's most active young men's organization, am very proud of the fact and take the responsibility very seriously.

ERNIE LINDSEY

I feel that this group is the greatest bunch of guys in the world and are deserving of a responsible leader.

I have been a Jaycee for about three years and in that time I have seen numerous young men come into the club and become responsible young men and very active in community affairs. The first and foremost obligation of the Jaycees is to teach their members leadership training. And the way we do this is through community development.

We as Jaycees are somewhat of a selfish organization. We use the community to train young men to be leaders. I am certain the community will benefit. But we are Jaycees, who are receiving this leadership training, will benefit more.

In the past year, the Jaycees have been involved in such projects as the Airport Fund Drive. I am most happy to say the Jaycees were largely responsible for the collection of over $50,000 to build the airport. We also sponsored Little Miss Pumpkin Show, the Halloween Parade, the Santa Parade and Santa House and the manned phones in Circleville for Jerry Lewis' Telethon on Muscular Dystrophy, Junior Champ, teenage rodeo and many others.

We have some 50 projects in all. Last year we were asked to run some 140 projects. But of course, because of the time element, we couldn't possibly handle all of them.

Of course, to run these projects, we need money and so we have our ways and means projects such as the Pumpkin Show Booth and Christmas Tree selling program, fair booth and DSA Banquet.

One thing I feel I must mention is the speak-up program which I feel is probably the most important thing the Jaycee program has. It teaches the Jaycees to speak before large groups of audiences with confidence and ease, which is just one of the traits of a leader.

To those of you who might be reading this article and may be interested in joining, I would like to say that the Jaycees are not by any means all work. We have our socials which have been averaging about one or two a month. We have the summer picnic, stag picnic, Halloween Party, Christmas Party, New Year's Eve party and numerous other get togethers. So if you are between the ages of 21 and 35 and of good character, let me or any other Jaycee know that you are interested and we'll see you get an application.

We also have a Jaycee Wives organization under the leadership of Chris Bailey. I just couldn't say enough for their terrific job. Every Jaycee wife is automatically a member.

I'd like to take this opportunity to thank all my officers and directors and members for all the support they have given me throughout the year. You're the greatest and I'm proud of each and every one of you.

TATE DATE JAN. 28—Charles Manson, 35, clad in a red velvet blouse, grins in court in Los Angeles, where he told Judge George M. Dell, "You know, judge, like sometimes I wonder if you know what is going on," to which the judge replied, "Sometimes I wonder, too." After a lengthy parley about Manson being his own lawyer in the seven-murder Sharon Tate case, Manson was granted a continuance until Jan. 28 to enter a plea.

That is about all I have to say to you, the community, except I can promise you that because of the Jaycees Circleville will have some terrific leaders in the years to come.

United States Jaycees Name Nation's Top Ten Young Men

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — A social activist, a lieutenant governor, a football professional and a Rockefeller were among the "10 Outstanding Young Men of 1969" named Saturday by the United States Jaycees.

Melvin Floyd, 34, a minister and policeman working in Philadelphia's slums for the Police Human Relations Department, who shows school children a movie he produced, "On Patrol for God," and arranges weekends on a farm for city youth.

Dr. David Mathews, 34, president of the University of Alabama, where he established honors programs aimed at keeping native leadership in the state.

John D. Rockefeller IV, 32, secretary of state in West Virginia and former special assistant to the director of the Peace Corps.

Archie Ward Is Local JC Week Chairman

National Jaycee Week is being observed January 18-24. During this week the Jaycees strive to inform the community of their purposes and projects. These can be achieved only through community support.

ARCHIE WARD

Many of the projects such as Santa House, Santa Parade and the Junior Champs directly benefit the community.

This year's Jaycee Week chairman is vice president Archie Ward, an employee of Super X Drugs.

The local Jaycee organization is composed of young men between the ages of 21 and 35 with approximately 41 members at the present time.

Through their activities the Jaycees aid in community development and also development of leadership qualities in individual members.

The Jaycees extend an invitation to all young men of the community to join their growing organization. To learn more about becoming a Jaycee, contact President Ernie Lindsey or any Jaycee member.

The story of the birth, growth and development of the United States Jaycees is a long and brilliant one.

In 1914 in St. Louis, Mo., Henry Giessenbier was an ambitious 22-year-old bank employe and president of a federation of dancing clubs. This federation was formed when Giessenbier joined his own social group, the Herculaneum, with several similar organizations.

To spice meetings of the federation, speakers often appeared discussing the vital topics of the day. One speaker, Col. H.N. Morgan, fired the men to action after delivering a talk on the value of a central parkway for St. Louis. As a result, Giessenbier and 31 young men founded the Young Men's Progressive Civic Assn. on Oct. 13, 1915, at the Mission Inn — birthplace of the Jaycee movement.

By 1918 the organization was known as the St. Louis Junior Chamber of Commerce and the fame of its work was beginning to become known. After World War I the St. Louis group was besieged with requests on just how to start similar Jaycee chapters. As a result, Giessenbier decided to form a national organization and at a caucus in January, 1920, the U. S. Jaycee organization was born.

Giessenbier, the founder, also had the honor of being the first U.S. Jaycee president. The new organization began with chapters in just 12 cities. It had its troubles in the 1920s and the early 1930s, but was still one of the fastest growing groups in the country.

The vital work at the local level, plus national influence and projects in fields such as aviation and get out the vote gained for the Jaycees a large measure of respect.

The Jaycees were becoming very strong when World War II broke out. Then they had to battle for their existence during the war years as 85 per cent of all members left for military service.

The boom followed the war, though, and today there are over 5,700 local chapters with a membership total of about 265,000.

The United States Jaycees which had no home city for its headquarters until 1935, now operate from the ultra modern War Memorial in Tulsa, Okla.

It was dedicated in 1952 to the Jaycees, who gave their lives for America in World War II.

Jaycee Christmas Tree Sales Is Annual Project

YULE TREES — One of the major holiday fund raising projects of the Circleville Jaycees is the annual Christmas tree sales. Tom Howell chairmanned the sales this year.

By TOM HOWELL

The Jaycees Christmas Tree Sale got a late start this year, but the late start didn't hinder the sale of trees.

Nov. 13 the Christmas tree sales chairman Tom Howell was picked and Bill Ballou and Steve Cherrington volunteered to be co-chairmen.

Later another co-chairman, Pete Cherrington was named for the project.

Within a week the trees were talked about and decided upon. In late November the trees were bought and the trip to Northern Ohio to get the trees was a project all by itself.

It was a morning, noon and night work-out for the seven volunteers who made the trip up and back in the pouring rain.

The seven men, Pete Cherrington, Steve Cherrington, Bruce Bell, Tom Howell, Bob Sines, Bill Ballou and Mike Alkire, loaded 400 trees into two vans and unloaded all the trees when they returned to Circleville.

Still with the rain and mud, plenty of other Jaycees helped unload the vans at the main location this year, 529 Elm Ave.

The tree sales started on Dec. 5. One hundred trees were located at Berhmer's Greenhouse with Pete Cherrington in charge. Fifty trees were taken to 419 E. Mound St. with Bob Sines in charge and 30 were taken to Big Bear lot but were left only a few days because they didn't sell as well as the trees on the main lot.

Some of the Jaycee Wives helped make posters and handed them out to various stores in the area. After Dec. 15 all trees were brought to the main lot to be sold.

Practically all Jaycees helped on this year's tree sales and it might have been due to the work schedule which was made out and sent to every Jaycee member.

I might also add that a lot of Jaycee wives pitched in and worked hard to help their husbands sell trees.

There were two couples scheduled to work each three hour shift which made it fun to get acquainted with the other Jaycee husbands and wives — especially for the newer members.

All in all, the Jaycee tree sales went very well this year. I do think the trees were of a much better selection than in past years. The 1969 Christmas tree project was a profitable one for Circleville Jaycees.

The Jaycees wish to thank all of those who patronized their tree sales.

The Christmas tree project's motto this year was "Help Us help you and your community." The Jaycees donated a tree to PICCA Day Care Center at the United Methodist Church.

Jaycee Christmas Tree Sales Is Annual Project

YULE TREES — One of the major holiday fund raising projects of the Circleville Jaycees is the annual Christmas tree sales. Tom Howell chairmanned the sales this year.

By TOM HOWELL

The Jaycees Christmas Tree Sale got a late start this year, but the late start didn't hinder the sale of trees.

Nov. 13 the Christmas tree sales chairman Tom Howell was picked and Bill Ballou and Steve Cherrington volunteered to be co-chairmen.

Later another co-chairman, Pete Cherrington was named for the project.

Within a week the trees were talked about and decided upon. In late November the trees were bought and the trip to Northern Ohio to get the trees was a project all by itself.

It was a morning, noon and night work-out for the seven volunteers who made the trip up and back in the pouring rain.

The seven men, Pete Cherrington, Steve Cherrington, Bruce Bell, Tom Howell, Bob Sines, Bill Ballou and Mike Alkire, loaded 400 trees into two vans and unloaded all the trees when they returned to Circleville.

Still with the rain and mud, plenty of other Jaycees helped unload the vans at the main location this year, 529 Elm Ave.

The tree sales started on Dec. 5. One hundred trees were located at Berhmer's Greenhouse with Pete Cherrington in charge. Fifty trees were taken to 419 E. Mound St. with Bob Sines in charge and 30 were taken to Big Bear lot but were left only a few days because they didn't sell as well as the trees on the main lot.

Some of the Jaycee Wives helped make posters and handed them out to various stores in the area. After Dec. 15 all trees were brought to the main lot to be sold.

Practically all Jaycees helped on this year's tree sales and it might have been due to the work schedule which was made out and sent to every Jaycee member.

I might also add that a lot of Jaycee wives pitched in and worked hard to help their husbands sell trees.

There were two couples scheduled to work each three hour shift which made it fun to get acquainted with the other Jaycee husbands and wives — especially for the newer members.

All in all, the Jaycee tree sales went very well this year. I do think the trees were of a much better selection than in past years. The 1969 Christmas tree project was a profitable one for Circleville Jaycees.

The Jaycees wish to thank all of those who patronized their tree sales.

The Christmas tree project's motto this year was "Help Us help you and your community." The Jaycees donated a tree to PICCA Day Care Center at the United Methodist Church.

HALLOWEEN PARADE — The annual Halloween Parade and Masquerade Contest is one of the many youth projects sponsored by the Circleville Jaycees.

Participation Is Key To Rewards Of Membership

As in all jobs of purpose, what a member receives from the Jaycees is in direct proportion to the amount of energy he directs toward bettering himself and his community.

This activity, in its basic form, is called committee activity. Committee work forms the springboard from which a member will rise to office in this organization, for it is the heartbeat of the chapter and 5,740 others throughout the United States.

Whether fellowship, civic improvement or developing leadership qualities is the goal, a member has set, he should be prepared to lend his time and brainpower to the organization he represents. He will find within his chapter an area of activity in which he has interest. Civic improvement, working with youth in sports activities, political activities, promoting safety on the highways, profit-making and religious emphasis are many activities from which he may choose.

He will find working with other young men and older civic leaders gives him confidence in his own abilities as each day he tackles some task not encountered in his regular job. Committee activity, as he will soon learn, can be one of the most pleasurable and enjoyable phases of the Jaycees. Much can be gained from seeing a job well done.

He belongs to a group of young men who have set standards — high standards. He was asked to become a part of this organization because he is capable of attaining goals left by a legacy of action. One of the foremost obligations he accepted was to attend his regular chapter meetings. Only in this way, can he fully realize the meaning and purpose of our concepts or philosophy.

One of our concepts, "Learning by doing: The Jaycee way" seems to best portray the trigger of our enthusiasm. The chapter is a proving ground for a member's success and, also his failure. But, unlike most organizations, mistakes are taken in stride.

We are all learning and after a few mistakes — we bounce back with the best, a quality to develop as we go along.

Although ideas and enthusiasm are lauded in the chapter, a look at the officers and directors of the chapter will show men who came up the hard way — winning respect with each stage of their progress.

First, as a committeeman, pitching in with others to see a job successfully completed and accepting with eagerness every responsibility hurled their way.

Next, as a sub-chairman of a committee, planning the work with the chairman and laying the groundwork; charting the

These projects provide a large portion of funds for various service projects conducted throughout the year.

Projects Aimed At Community Youth

The Jaycees, being an organization with young members, conduct several projects each year aimed at the young people of the community. course of action for the men to follow. Then, as a chairman of a committee, motivating sub chairman, planning, directing and coordinating the work of others for the purpose of achieving a common goal.

At this stage in his surge up the leadership ladder, a member would be prepared to seek an elective rather than an appointive office — such as the Board of Directors.

Here, he could successfully utilize every facet of knowledge he has accumulated through his committee work, practice the skills of communication learned through closely working with his committee members, spell out new proposals as to what should be accomplished, provided for the members of the Board the ultimate aims, or the desired end products of the group's purpose. At this level, he will prepare himself for the administrative posts mounting to the president of his chapter.

Perfect Fall Evening Setting For Annual Halloween Parade

By TOM HOWELL

A perfect Fall evening was the setting for the annual Jaycees Halloween Parade held on Oct. 30, 1969. The time was changed from 7:30 to 6:30 p.m. so the younger children could participate and still have time to trick or treat that same evening.

Yule Party Is Jaycee Social Highlight

By JAKE BAILEY
1st Vice President,
Circleville Jaycees

The Circleville Jaycees and their wives held their annual Christmas dinner and party Dec. 20 at the Pickaway Country Club.

A cocktail hour was held before the buffet style dinner. After the dinner a gift exchange was held and some clever and unusual gifts were received. A drawing was held for the pine decorated centerpiece which was won by Mr. and Mrs. Archie Ward.

Later in the evening dancing was enjoyed. Attending the event were Mr. and Mrs. Mike Alkire, Mr. and Mrs. James Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ballou, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bircher, Mr. and Mrs. William Brooke, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Cherrington, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Cherrington, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Elsea, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Eveland, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hatfield, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Lewis, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Liggett, Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Lindsey, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Semendri, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sines, Mr. and Mrs. Terry Sloan, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Ward.

The parade assembled at the city building and the route was the same as last year. Judging followed the parade at the local YMCA building and refreshments were served to all who participated.

The Halloween Parade is a youth and sports project with all the benefits going to the people of the community. The purpose of the parade is to establish a wholesome relationship between the community and the Halloween children. Planning of the project began during the month of September with the selection of the chairman of the parade, Tom Howell and his co-chairmen, Ron Miller, Bob Sines and Bill Ballou.

During the month of October approximately 60 Jaycee man hours were needed to make the Halloween Parade a success. There were lots of man hours other than Jaycees involved and also donations such as the financing for the project which was donated by the Chamber of Commerce, as in proceeding years. Also the use of the local YMCA was donated for judging, and refreshments were donated by Lindseys Bakery and Coca Cola Plant. The radio station donated the use of its public address system, and local police and the sheriff's department were a great help in the parade route. There were plenty of Jaycees and their wives on hand to help out in any way they could.

The local Circleville High School Band led the masqueraders along the parade route to the judging building where the prizes were handed out to 31 participants.

Dressed in true spook fashion were "The Punkin Family" which consisted of Donna Smith, Tom Smith, and Dwayne Hackney rustled their way up to the top of the winners list in their costumes of burlap saddled with corn husks and topped with decorated pumpkin heads. Premium for grand prize was $5.

Other Circleville winners were:

Ages 1 to 7: Prettiest, 1. Trisha Manbeavers; 2. Melissa Mills; 3. Karen Lewis.

Ages 1 to 7: Ugliest, 1. Peggy Van Meter; 2. Amy Van Meter; 3. Vicki Cherrington.

Ages 1 to 7: most original: 1. Michael Williams; 2. Michael Starkey; 3. Bridget Sloan.

Ages 1 to 7: Ugliest, 1. Kelly England; 2. Vicky Had-dox; 3. Teresa Tomlinson.

Ages 8 to 14: Ugliest: 1. Peggy Isaac; 2. Kimberly Tomlinson; 3. Willie Clifton.

Ages 8 to 14: Most Original. 1. Dwayne Hackney; 2. Donald Holbrook; 3. Brent Smith.

Ages 14 and Over: prettiest, 1. Ruth Beck; 2. Lucille Kar-shner; 3. Katie Lowery.

Ages 15 and Over: Ugliest: 1. Barbara Rush; 2. Dave Garrett; 3. Marilyn Horn.

Ages 15 and Over: most original, 1. Juanita Garner; 2.

Gary Brown; 3. Mrs. Marvin Dumm.

Couples: 1. Mrs. John Neff and Mrs. Jay Kaiser; 2. Kathy Montgomery and Martha Moore; 3. Tom Smith and Donna Smith.

There were all kinds of spooks, goblins, monsters, witches and other Halloween costumes that were very outstanding, and approximately 400 people were involved in the parade. The judges had a very hard time picking only 31 prize winners. Any one who wishes to enter the parade each year is welcome to do so, and this year there were even senior citizens as contestants. Even the Jaycees can come up with a way to bridge the generation gap.

Halloween Party Held By Jaycees

The Circleville Jaycees held their Halloween Costume Party Oct. 25 in the Jaycee Clubrooms. Decorations and refreshments were provided by the Jaycee Wives.

Mike Alkire played the organ for entertainment and dancing, along with solo and group singing.

Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Larry Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Alkire, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ballou, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Sines, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Bircher, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. Terry Sloane, Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Lindsey, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Cherrington and Mr. and Mrs. Phil VanMeter.

Jaycee Purpose: Leadership, Community Development

The purpose of the Jaycees is community development and leadership training.

First, community development. The typical Jaycee approach to community problems is usually more action-oriented than that of other organizations. Many of the civic clubs have gained the reputation of luncheon groups because most of their concern is with attending meetings and hearing speakers. Projects — and extremely worthwhile ones — are naturally conducted.

A Jaycee chapter which spots a need for a playground in its city will not be satisfied with pointing out the need to elected leaders. It will, if necessary, work thousands of hours to put in the facility itself. Without disputing the need for discussion and planning, Jaycees realize that you've got to start work by rolling up sleeves.

The second important aim of the Jaycees is leadership training. In the Jaycees, a young man is given an opportunity to extend his formal education which was relatively completed when he graduated from high school or college into the broader field of civic leadership. "Jaycees don't build communities, they build the men who build communities."

Until this organization had its founding, a young man had no opportunity to develop his ability along this line in the company of his contemporaries. Active participation in the Jaycees gives him confidence, stature, public speaking ability and all the many other attributes which point to a leader in business and community life.

There are countless cases of the ability of young men, the pages of history are filled with their achievements. Washington was a Colonel in the Virginia Army when he was 19; William Pitt was Prime Minister of Great Britain when he was 24; Napoleon was emperor of France when he was 33; McCormick had invented the reaper and Westinghouse the air brake by the time they were 23; Shakespeare had written 10 of his greatest plays at 32; Sir Isaac Newton discovered the law of gravitation when he was 24; Alexander Hamilton was Secretary of the Treasury when he was 32; and the average age of the first Continental Congress of the United States was slightly under 34 years of age.

Energy, enthusiasm and willingness to try more things, plus the attributes of virile young manhood will truly accomplish miracles.

JCI Senate Is Coveted Honor Award

This is the story of the birth and growth of a great idea — what developed from it — what heights it has already attained.

It is an account of a program which has in a significant manner enhanced the prestige of Junior Chamber International by retaining the interest and support of many outstanding men throughout the world.

The first seeds of the Senate were sown with the creation of the circular, The Elder Statesman. Our story begins in September 1951 when two prominent Jaycees, Phil Pugsley, the JCI President and John Armbruster, charter member of the "first" Junior Chamber, were discussing a publication called the "Log," which John had been sending out to retired officers and directors of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Phil, aware of the fine work the "Log" was doing to keep alive friendship formed among past U.S. Jaycees struck upon the idea of sending a similar publication to the "alumni" of Junior Chamber International. Naturally, Phil asked John to take on the job — who better qualified to edit a publication for JCI "oldtimers" than John Armbruster?

Recalling the incident John commented: "I told him I had plenty of work to do getting out the 'Log' but Phil was a persistent Jaycee and he had talked me into taking on this assignment. After discussing various names we could give the little paper, we hit upon The Elder Statesman.

The JCI alumni throughout the world were becoming important citizens of their respective countries and they were in fact "elder statesmen" to the younger men in the Junior Chamber movement. So this name was adopted for the newsletter." The Elder Statesman has since become synonymous with "Senate" in the minds of thousands of members and past members throughout the world.

A further development in the Senate story took place in New York City in January, 1952, at a casual meeting between Junior Chamber Representative to the United Nations, Sid Boxer and Phil Pugsley, who as so often happens in Junior Chamber, were discussing the affairs of the world over a cup of coffee, while in transit on Jaycee visitation schedules.

During the conversation questions, which for a long time had remained unanswered, arose:

"Why is it that past Jaycees are allowed to drift away completely from the movement, when many of them would like to have some lifelong link with Junior Chamber?" "Why do local Jaycee chapters spend thousands of dollars annually giving baubles in the form of trays, briefcases, desk set and the like, to those they wish to honor — when the same funds spent on Junior Chamber International could work for a cause in which they all believed?" "Why has an idea like Jaycee taken so long to gather enthusiasts around the world, after having been alive for nearly 40 years?"

Searching for these answers, Phil and Sid conceived the idea that perhaps a group of "Honored" Jaycees could be formed that would, in effect, help to spread the Junior Chamber concept world-wide. At the same time, they felt membership in this group could, in many ways, strengthen Junior Chamber International.

So it was that two Jaycees, over a cup of coffee, conceived his idea — and the JCI Senate was born.

The idea was put on paper and presented to the VII JCI World Congress in Melbourne, Australia, in September 1952, where it was approved and placed in the JCI By-Laws as a category of membership. Since then, well over 6,000 Junior Chamber members, in more than 77 countries, have been honored.

As the years passed, and the Senate ranks increased, Senators found it rewarding to keep in touch with each other around the world. As a result, many real and tangible friendships have been built through the Senate. Any Senator will today tell you how much he values this! For convenience and fellowship many Senators today are forming groups in suitable geographical areas (city, state or national). The primary function of these groups is to enable a continuity of contact between the individuals.

However, the bonds of loyalty and support of JCI are not confined solely to corresponding with other Senators. For example, in the early days of the program, by pulling together, the JCI Senators were almost solely responsible for providing the financial means of establishing JCI's first permanent Secretariat Staff. In this way, the Senators virtually built the foundation of our World Headquarters which has so greatly fostered the growth and extension of the Junior Chamber movement.

With this support, Junior Chamber began to grow well beyond the early dreams of its most enthusiastic supporters. To quote the late Phil Pugsley, "A JCI Senatorship is not just a pat on the back for contributing $50 or for having done a good Jaycee job in the past. It is a lifelong reminder that freedom can be lost by all of us during our lifetime; and the maximum support of freedom-breeding institutions such as the Jaycee movement . . . is one of the best ways of retaining those things which are worthwhile in life."

There is a growing appreciation of the value and honor of the Senate. In granting (Honorary) Life Membership, the Senate provides a subtle link with present and past Jaycees. The nature of the link is one of continuing interest and indirect support to the Junior Chamber movement. The physical forms this link takes is a Senate column, written by the Senate Chairman, which appears regularly in JCI WORLD. This practice is being emulated in local and national Junior Chamber organizations everywhere. The Immediate Past World President becomes Chairman of the Senate.

Today, the income from the Senate is used primarily for extension and development. Therefore, the awarding of a Senatorship makes it possible to bring to an evergrowing number of young men and communities around the world the ideals and benefits of this great organization.

At the XVth World Congress of Junior Chamber International held in Paris, France, the General Assembly approved the principle that income from the Senate Fund should be used primarily for extension of Junior Chamber ideals and principles into non-Junior Chamber areas, to further the growth of the organization.

At the XIX World Congress in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, a supplementary policy was adopted to limit the sum expended from Senate Funds on development in any one year to 75 per cent of Senate income in that year, the reserve balance to be placed in an account to be called "Senate Fund Account." The balance is accumulated in this reserve account for the ultimate purpose of making it possible for JCI to have its own permanent International Headquarters building.

Senate Funds have played a major role in the extension of Junior Chamber on the Continent of Africa. In 1961, a subsidized extension team began to form new Junior Chambers, and in three short months nine new Chambers had been formed. To foster this growth and bring the necessary training to these new members a JCI Conference was held in Brazzaville, Congo, in September 1962, at which twelve Central and West African nations were represented. Two delegates from each of these nations were invited to the Conference by JCI, with Senate Funds subsidizing their attendance. Following the success of the Brazzaville Conference, two other JCI Conferences were held in Abidjan, Ivory Coast and Cotonou, Dahomey in 1963.

In 1964, $7,000 was allocated to a special JCI Development Fund to assist experienced and well-organized National Organizations in giving assistance and guidance to other individuals in developing Junior Chamber countries.

Through this Development Fund, teams of experienced Junior Chamber members visited Ecuador, Venezuela, Dominican Republic, Malaysia and Mexico. Selected members were chosen to travel and present training courses and seminars in: Salisbury, Rhodesia, Lusaka, Zambia, Sarawak; Brazil; Penang, Malaysia and at JCI Conferences in New Delhi, India; and Managua, Nicaragua. In addition, several outstanding NOM training publications were purchased and distributed to every Local Chamber.

To insure positive, active growth and development within JCI the recommendation of the 1964 Long Range Planning Committee for the creation of the position of an Executive Vice-President for Development was adopted by General Assembly at the XIX World Congress in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, U.S.A. The duties of this office include the planning for continuous development of JCI; selection, instruction and coordination of development teams; coordination of National Organization development programs; supervision of the Program Manager for Extension and recommending development expenditure from the Senate Fund.

As a result of this General Assembly decision, 1965 heralded new and greater strides made in the field of development. New Zealand undertook "Operation-India 1965", an ambitious program assisted by JCI Development Funds. The three week visit, made by a team of six outstanding New Zealand Jaycees, covered 12 major cities in India. Seminars were conducted in various phases of Junior Chamber activity including chapter and individual development and officer training.

Another successful program was The U.S. Jaycees "Ambassador Program" which, in its first year of operation, sent four two-man teams to the Central American countries of Mexico, El Salvador, Honduras and Panama. Similar to the New Zealand undertaking, during their visit, seminars emphasizing the fundamentals of chapter organization were conducted in as many local chambers as possible.

Exchange visits also took place between Sweden and Greece and Scotland and Denmark while others were formulated for later 1966 and for 1967.

In the decade since its inception, a JCI Senatorship has become a coveted honor award, granted only to those men who have performed outstanding service to the junior Chamber organization. It is a special award that provides through life membership a tangible link with an organization embracing over 330,000 young men of action, in nations surrounding the globe.

It provides a unique means for recognizing the outstanding achievements of members and former members and at the same time provides funds for the extension and expansion of Junior Chamber to more and more young men in countries around the world.

The Chairman of the JCI Senate is the Immediate Past President of JCI, and he is responsible for preparing and distributing or causing to be distributed, subject to budgetary limitations, information to Senators on subjects pertaining to the Senate.

In the past few years city, state and national Senate Groups have been formed to facilitate and promote fellowship among Senators. In these groups they benefit from the exchange of experience and ideas, and keep in touch with the Junior Chamber organization by inviting local, national or international Jaycees as guests to their functions. Senate Groups sometimes also sponsor Awards for local and national Junior Chamber competitions.

Through the Senate and Senate Groups, JCI retains the interest, loyalty and support of many outstanding men throughout the world.

A Life Membership, entitled JCI Senator, may be awarded to Individual Members or Past Members as a means of honoring them for rendering outstanding service to the Junior Chamber organization.

Senatorships for current Individual Members shall be restricted to awards or presentations to members of at least two years' standing for services rendered at any level of the organization.

Senatorships for Past Members may be awarded by way of presentation subject to the written approval of the local and National Organization

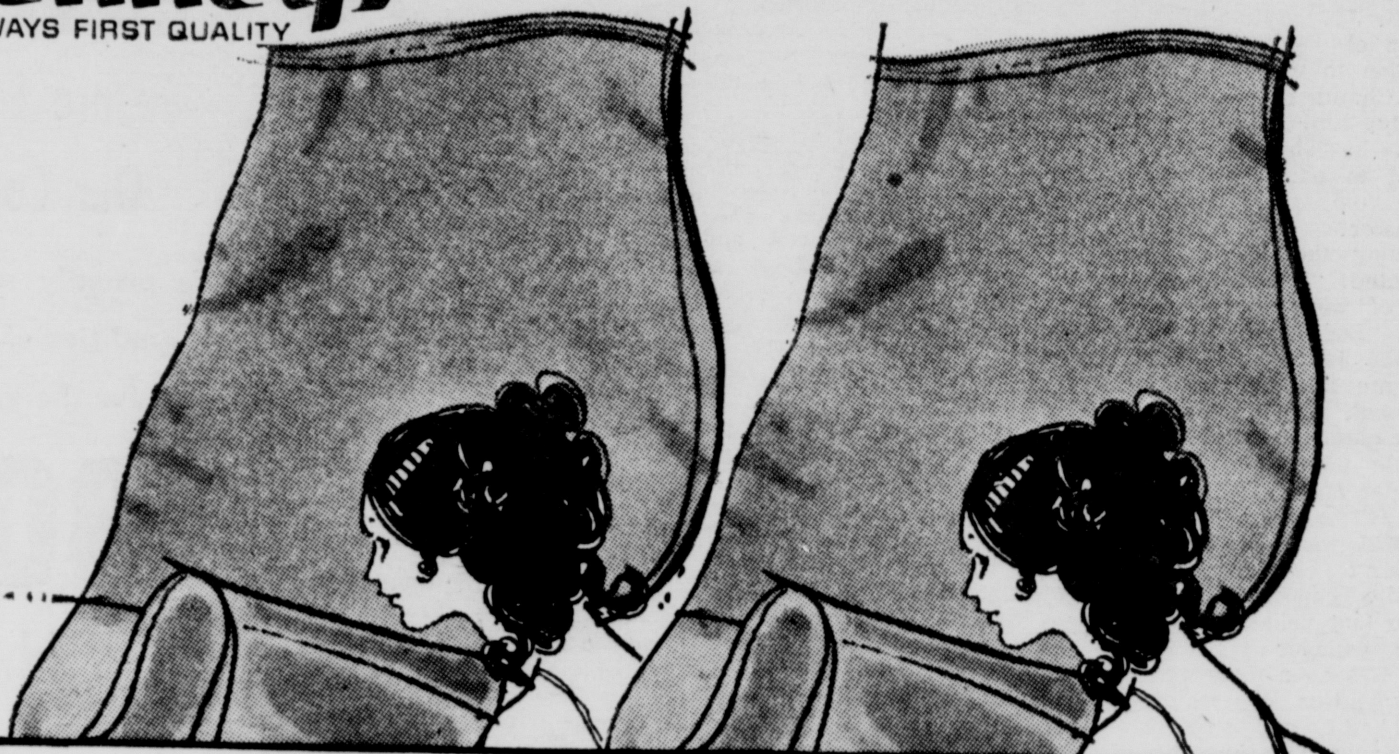

Presidents, who are expected to make such enquiries with respect to the applicant as may in their opinion be appropriate.

The awarding of a JCI Senatorship is an honor that can be bestowed to a man only once in his lifetime. The actual presentation should therefore be conducted with appropriate dignity and preferably at a formal installation ceremony, a awards banquet, State Provincial or National Convention.

When formally awarding a Senatorship, the new Senator receives a Senate Membership Certificate, a Membership Card and a special Senators' Pin. Senate numbers are never re-assigned.

The state director is the official Jaycee between the local chapter and the state administration.

The main objective of a state director should be to give in detail everything which takes place on the state and national level.

Many of the local projects are started at the state and national level. For example the DSA banquet, outstanding young farmer, teenage rodeo, junior champ are all projects which have come to us from the state and national administrations.

And not only do we get projects from the state but we also introduce projects to the state for them to consider as state projects.

The state director informs the local organization about any proposed resolutions on the state and national level and carry their vote to the state trustee meetings on the resolutions. And as with projects, a state director introduces a resolution from his local to the state trustees for approval as a state resolution.

State trustee meetings are held four times a year and a state convention is held in May. The state director is appointed by the local president and normally is the immediate president. He also is to act as an adviser when called upon to do so.

He serves on the executive board and is available for assistance to any of the officers, directors, chairmen and all the members.

The state directors position is also a stepping stone to becoming a state officer as it serves as a training ground for further activity up the ladder of Jayceeism.
